Parents deny they OK'd shutting off of life machine on son

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The parents of a youth who died after his life-support system was shut off say they did not give doctors permission to unhook a respirator that kept their son alive for 18 days after his brain was destroyed through medical error.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Uribes said they did not know how their 19-year-old son, Sammy, died until they read in the newspapers that the hospital had disconnected the respirator that had kept him breathing.

In a report filed Sept. 11 by Valley Medical Center's chief resident surgeon, Dr. Michael Freeman, the hospital said Sammy's brain died during surgery when an anesthetist placed an oxygen tube in his esophagus instead of his trachea, cutting off the oxygen supply to his brain for about five minutes.

The report said doctors informed the Uribes that Sammy's brain had died and that the couple agreed the respirator should be shut off.

The hospital said the mistake made by the anesthetist, who has since been fired, was "contributory" to Sammy's death.

George Carter, attorney for the Uribes, said the couple "never consented to taking him off (the respirator). They were told that the hospital had decided after a staff meeting to turn off the respirator."

In similar cases in Ohio and New Jersey, parents initiated requests to unhook life-support systems from their comatose children, only to be refused by doctors who maintain they have no legal right to do so.

In Sammy Uribes' case, the parents say they did not ask doctors to let their son die.

Sammy was taken to the hospital on Aug. 10 for treatment of a stab wound in the abdomen. It was when surgeons were trying to repair his punctured stomach that the mistake was made by the anesthetist.

He was placed on a mechanical respirator to keep him alive until Aug. 28, when a medical center doctor shut the machine off and Sammy died, according to Freeman's report.

"This is a strange case," said attorney George Carter. "The parents came to me after they found out, not from the hospital but through the newspapers, how their son died.

"We planned to file a malpractice suit (because of the anesthetist's error), and I asked for medical records from the hospital. Instead, I get this report from Dr. Michael Freeman.

"It's a unique situation when it's the hospital's negligence that causes the boy to be in the position he's in, then they make the decision to take him off the respirator."

Lauren Bowytz, associate administrator at the hospital, declined to comment on the case, except to say, "We would not take him off the respirator unless it was absolutely warranted."

Actually, whether the Uribes consented to termination of the life-support system is legally a moot point because California law prohibits ending any patient's life, even if parents give their consent, Carter said. And in Sammy's case, his parents could not have made such a decision for him because he was not a minor, Carter said.

In recent weeks, the legal and medical controversy over whether death can be defined as cessation of brain activity has become more heated. Death is generally defined as when breathing stops.

Medical technology can keep a patient "alive" by mechanically regulating breathing and essential bodily functions, but once the brain is destroyed there is no way to return the patient to a normal life. The patient, legally alive, becomes a "vegetable" incapable of thought or communication.

In New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quinlan are asking a court to allow doctors to turn off the respirator that has kept their 21-year-old daughter, Karen, alive for five months with no hope of recovery.

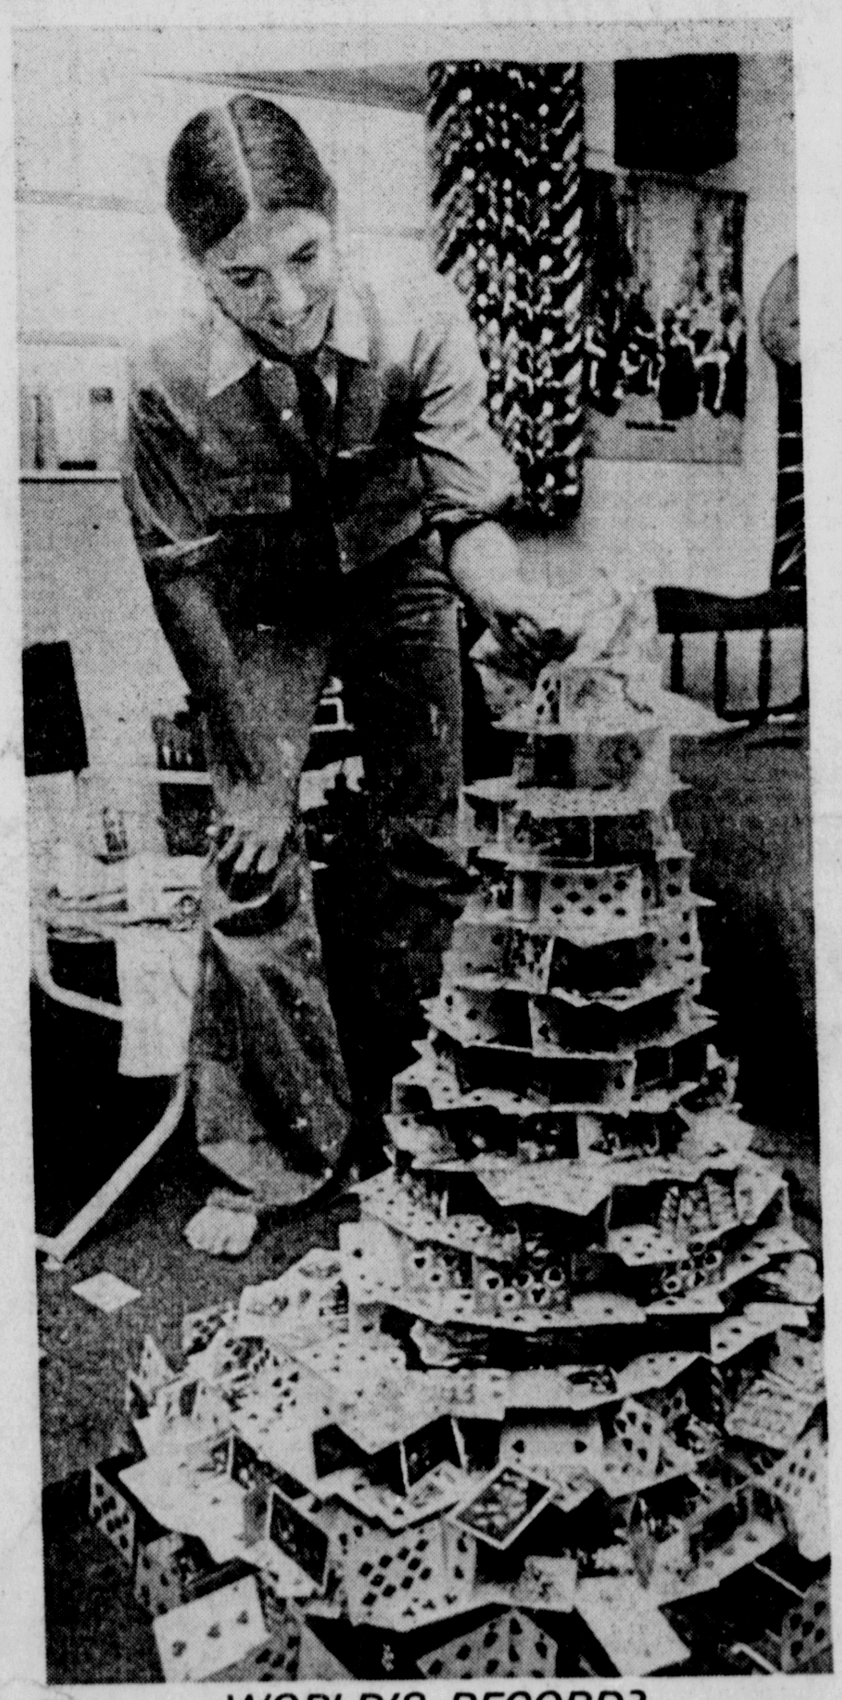

The hospital has asked for immunity from prosecution for homicide if the court rules that Karen's life can be terminated at her parents' request.

In Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carmen were contemplating legal action to allow their 17-year-old son, Randal, to die after several weeks in a coma with no chance to regain consciousness, but the boy died on Saturday.

The Carmens now say they would like to see legislation passed that would legally define death as when the brain is destroyed, to keep other parents "from going through what we went through."

'Same Nixon crowd running show'

Strauss urges Ford: fire economic aides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss called on President Ford today to fire his top economic advisers, charging that "the same old Nixon crowd is minding the store" while Ford spends his time worrying about a possible election challenge from Ronald Reagan.

Keynoting the last meeting of the Democratic National Committee before the 1976 presidential battle starts, Strauss said that "American domestic policy is being set by a non-elected President catering to the political base of a former right wing governor of California."

He said Ford should fire Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisors and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns.

However, Burns could not be removed as chairman of the independent board until 1978 at the earliest, when his current four-year term as chairman expires. He could not be removed from the board itself until 1984 when his 14-year term as one of the board's seven members expires.

The 71-year-old Burns was first appointed chairman of the board by former President Richard M. Nixon in 1970 and was reappointed in 1974.

"This same crowd ran the country while Richard Nixon spent his time worrying about Watergate and re-election and now they run it while President Ford worries about Ronald Reagan and renomination," Strauss said.

"It's an outrage. I know it, you know it and we damn well better get on with the business of letting the nation know it," Strauss said.

Noting that the Democrats have entered their past two conventions as the majority party yet emerged a disunited minority, Strauss said the rules being presented to the committee for the 1976 convention will enable it to work toward the goal of electing a Democratic president in 1976.

He called for the nomination of "strong, committed and unifying candidates" and the adoption of a platform "that addresses the human needs of the American people," declaring that only when that happens will the Democrats "deserve to" elect a president.

As a result of the unanimity shown at the party's executive committee meetings the past two days, the meeting today of the 361-member Democratic National Committee may be as quiet and as uncontroversial as most Republican national committee meetings of recent years.

The national committee meeting was to last today and Wednesday, but officials were speculating that the lack of controversy might enable Strauss to cancel Wednesday's session.

Although some objections to executive committee decisions are likely, all challenges are expected to be overwhelmingly beaten.

Strauss said the party now has "good rules" that will enable it to avoid past difficulties. Procedural difficulties rather than division on issues have been responsible for past disunity, Strauss said today on the CBS-TV "Morning News."

The Democratic chairman predicted the party will unite behind its 1976 presidential nominee. Strauss also said he thinks it will take two or three ballots to choose a nominee because delegate selection rules may prevent any one candidate from getting all of the states' votes by coming in first in primaries.

It's possible a candidate will win the nomination in the primaries but "the odds are we'll have a multi-ballot convention," Strauss said.

While rejecting the likelihood of a "brokered" convention, Strauss said that if a nominee fails to emerge after three ballots, he expects "an increased tempo of negotiations" among the various candidates and the constituencies that make up the party.

Catholics cite reasons for drop in attendance

BOSTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church's stance on birth control, divorce and the authority of the Pope are the main reasons why fewer Catholics are going to church, according to a national church-sponsored study.

The results of a survey conducted by the National Catholic Opinion Research Center in Chicago were released here Monday at the opening of a national liturgical conference.

"Almost half of the decline in Mass attendance can be accounted for by the changing attitude toward birth control," according to the study presented by Dr. William C. McCready of the research center.

"About a quarter of the decrease in churchgoing is accounted for by attitudes toward divorce and (another quarter) toward the Pope as head of the church."

The report said that despite the statistics "preliminary indications are that people are not less concerned with their religious lives, but are concerned and expressing reservations about their religious institutions."

The statistics showed that between 1963 and 1974 there was a drop in attendance by one third, both in New England and nationwide, and encompassing all age groups.

However, it said liturgical changes, such as using English in the Mass, cannot be blamed for the drop in regular attendance.

The sharpest decline was recorded in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas, where attendance was down by more than half. Practically no decrease was recorded in Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

The report also recognized "the phenomenon of older people changing the church-going habits of a lifetime," with the decline signifying a "broadbased change of heart."

Only one aspect of worship showed an upward trend, according to the survey.

Emperor touched over U.S. visit

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito returned to Japan today from his two-week visit to the United States and expressed his "deepest appreciation to President Ford and the American people for the warm welcome I received.

"I am very happy I was able to see the United States on the eve of its bicentennial, its great historic heritage, its society overflowing with activity and its stupendous natural beauty," the 74-year-old emperor told an airport crowd of about 2,000 waving small paper Japanese flags and shouting "Banzai!" (Long life!).

"I was able to see and learn how the American people are earnestly continuing to work in the interests of bringing prosperity to their free society and world peace," the emperor said.

"I was deeply touched to see the activity of many Japanese residents and Japanese-American citizens.

"In reflecting back on this tour, I feel that it is very important to bring to bear mutual understanding through international friendship."

The emperor and Empress Nagako flew home from Hawaii, where they spent the last two days of their American tour resting. It was the first official visit by a Japanese emperor to America.

Officials said about 13,000 police were on duty at the airport and along the route to the Imperial Palace in downtown Tokyo. The heavy guard was ordered because some radical leftist groups opposed the visit, charging it would bolster military ties between Japan and the United States. But they were able to muster only a few hundred demonstrators when the emperor left for the United States, and no incidents were reported today.

Two 20-yen (six-cent) stamps commemorating the American tour went on sale today. On one, cherry blossoms are superimposed over the American flag, while on the other dogwood flowers are over the Japanese flag.

North Koreans accuse U.S. of provocation

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea accused the United States today of planning to send 60 new jet fighters worth $205 million to South Korea to instigate "bellicose elements" there to provoke a new Korean war. There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials.

North Korea, in a broadcast by the official Korean Central News Agency, called the reported arms buildup a "wanton violation of the Korean armistice agreement" and "a grave criminal act intended to block the peaceful reunification of Korea."

Bomber explodes, crashes into homes; woman killed

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — A British air force bomber exploded in flight, broke in two and crashed in flames outside Valletta today, demolishing 12 houses and killing a woman, witnesses said.

Two crew members were seen ejecting from the plane shortly before it crashed, and helicopters and ships searched for survivors. The bomber, a Vulcan, normally carries a crew of five, but it was not immediately known how many persons were aboard.

The bomber crashed at Zabbar, eight miles from Valletta, after narrowly missing heavily populated areas and two colleges with more than 1,000 students.

A British air force spokesman said the pilot had been attempting an emergency landing after an explosion and fire aboard.

Local gunman is suspect in 4 other area holdups

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

A lone gunman who robbed the Firehouse Inn in Pomona Monday night may also have been the one who held up businesses in Riverside, Corona, Covina and Glendora, law enforcement authorities said today.

The bandit robbed the Pomona restaurant at 998 N. Garey Ave. shortly before 10:30. Cashier Beth Ann Boydston, 21, said she saw the man enter, walk through the bar and a dining room and return to her stand near the front door. He asked for cigarettes and then pulled a pistol and demanded money. After getting $100, he left through the front door, ran to a car parked on the parking lot and was driven away by a second man.

The robber was described as a Caucasian about 23 years old, 5 feet 7, weighing 150 pounds. He had dirty, shoulder-length brown hair, and wore dark clothing, including a long-sleeved shirt.

About 40 minutes later a man of similar description robbed Smith's Food King, 5115 N. Citrus Ave., Covina, of about $700. He forced an employe, Debra Gayle Levin, 23, to accompany him outside the store and then fled.

Police said they believe the same man may have been responsibile for the robbery earlier of a theater in Riverside, a market robbery in Corona and, after the Pomona and Covina holdups, the robbery of the Mayflower Market at Grand Avenue and Base Line Road in Glendora. They theorized that he and the driver were working their way to Los Angeles.

Funds, job training wane; 90 Viets may turn to welfare

OAKLAND (AP) — "We're hungry...and we want to work," said Dang Phung, speaking for himself and about 90 other Vietnamese refugees who face the prospect of going on welfare after being brought here to train for security guard jobs.

The refugees, most of them former South Vietnamese military officers in their 20s and early 30s, have been living in a 21-unit apartment house here.

They left the Camp Pendleton refugee relocation center near San Diego Sept. 11 and spent a week at Eagle Field in Fresno County before arriving here Sept. 17.

A $40,000 government-backed grant from the Tolstoy Foundation of New York City was made for their living expenses and training. Now the money is nearly all gone, and none of the refugees has obtained a job yet.

"We left Vietnam dreaming of a new life," said Phung. "We can't go back because of the Communist government. The American people have been so nice . . . we thought we'd make good together. But right now, we've been hungry for the fifth time."

The $40,000 from the Tolstoy Foundation to finance the guard-training program for the refugees was paid to the Bay Area Maintenance Service Council of San Francisco. John Whelan, attorney for BAMSC, said that organization trained minority groups from 1967 until 1971 when it went out of business. It was reactivated Sept. 10 by James C. Wright of San Francisco, BAMSC president.

"We can't send them back to Camp Pendleton — once they're out, the government won't take them back," Whelan said. "So, today, we're asking Alameda County welfare to put them on their rolls."

Whelan said he wrote a check for $2,000 Monday to cover food for a week and that he would pay another month of rent.

He said only $2,000 remained of the Tolstoy Foundation money obtained in a $15,900 grant Sept. 10, $18,600 Sept. 27 and $5,400 Oct. 7. The rest of the funds have been spent for food and administration, Whelan said.

After getting the first grant, BAMSC hired Erwin Pardue and G. E. Molander to administer the training program and they farmed out the training to Gordon Jacobson of San Bruno, an employe of the Urban Security Services in San Francisco, Whelan said.

"We contracted through Erwin Pardue to train them and were given assurances that they could handle English, which you need in this business," said Jacobson. "But almost all of them can't communicate in English and there is just no way we can get them jobs without that."

However, Whelan said about one-third of the refugees were able to speak English and that he hoped to place them in jobs by the end of the month.

Neither Molander or Pardue could be reached for comment, nor could a representative of the Tolstoy Foundation who came to San Francisco to investigate the situation.

"With 128,000 Southeast Asia refugees now moved out of the camps, I'm positive there are hundreds of situations like this around the country," Whelan said.

State to begin nuclear plant debate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An Assembly committee opens a series of hearings today on the nuclear safeguards initiative — a proposal one lawmaker says may be the most important one acted on by voters in 50 years.

More than 100 witnesses are expected to testify before the Committee on Resources, Land Use and Energy during 15 days of hearings to provide a "data base" on effects of the proposal.

Among those scheduled to appear are consumer advocate Ralph Nader, federal energy administrator Frank Zarb, and Dr. Edward Teller, the scientist who led in developing the nation's first H-bomb.

The initiative, which will appear on the ballot next June, would ban construction of nuclear power plants and gradually cut back use of existing nuclear plants unless two conditions are met:

—Within a year after the measure is approved, the federal government lifts its limit on the liability of a nuclear power plant owner in the event of an accident involving a nuclear plant.

—Within five years after approval, the legislature approves safety mechanisms and waste disposal systems used by the plants.

Committee chairman Charles Warren said the hearings were scheduled in an attempt to avoid an election decision based on "political sloganeering."

"The initiative is probably among the most important — if not the most important — submitted to the electorate in the last half century," the Los Angeles Democrat said Monday.

"To a great extent energy vendors are relying upon nuclear fuels to supply and meet California's future energy needs.

"There is considerable scientific and public concern about the wisdom of that reliance and this concern is reflected in the initiative itself."

Testimony will cover the number of nuclear plants forecast for the state, their reliability, what effect the initiative would have and what other energy sources are available, Warren said.

The committee is also scheduled to meet Wednesday and then again on Oct. 21-22, Oct. 28-29, Nov. 4-5, Nov. 18-19-20, Dec. 2-3 and Dec. 9-10. All sessions will be in Sacramento.

Besides testimony, there will be films on nuclear power.

"Washington and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Federal Energy Administration look upon these hearings as a definitive effort," Warren said.

"And the results, they believe, will influence what happens in at least 34 other states."

ALPHONZO BELL

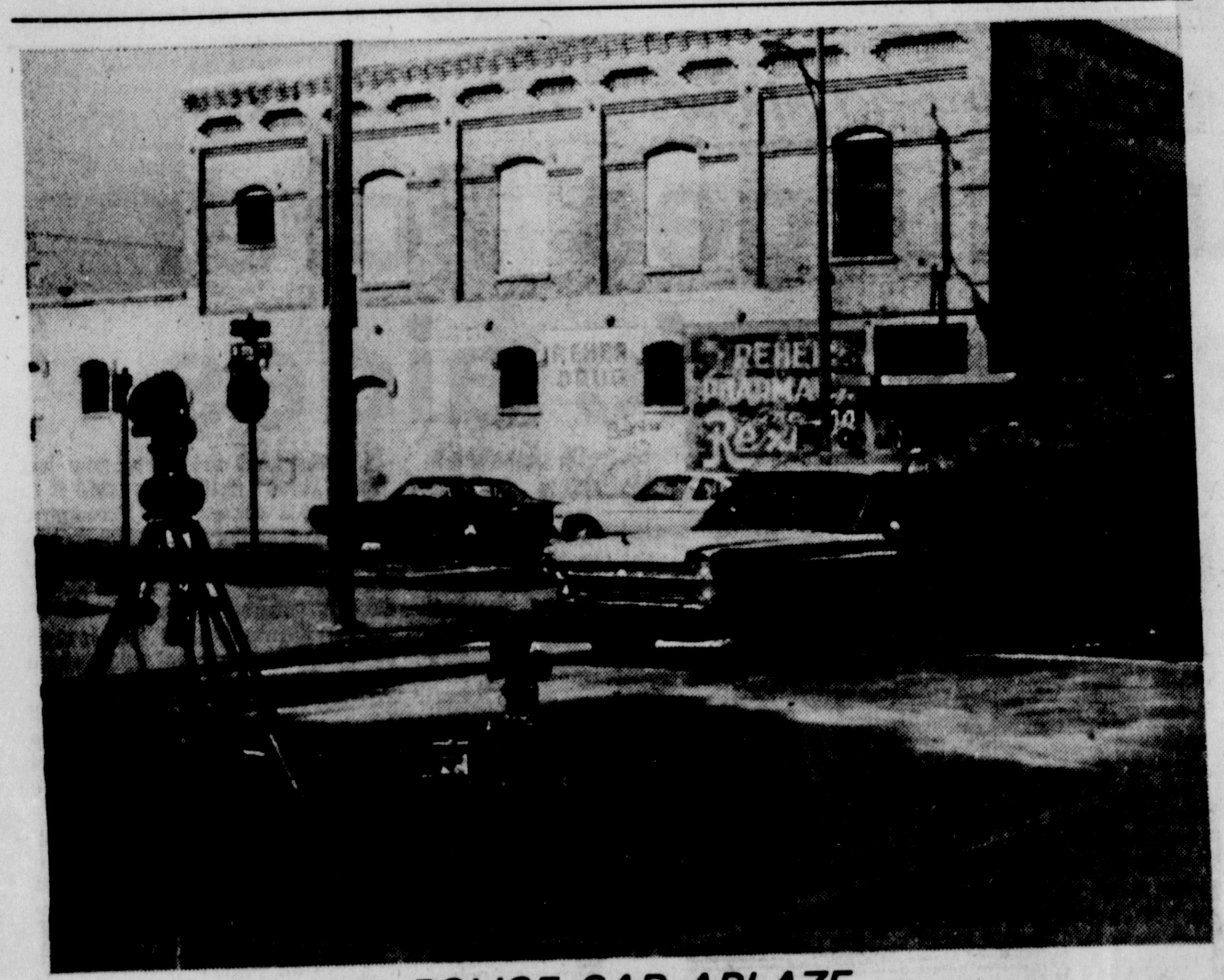

Bell will run for Senate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rep. Alphonzo Bell, R-Calif., said today he would seek the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate, becoming the second Republican to announce his candidacy.

The eight-term congressman said his 15 years on Capitol Hill qualified him for the post currently held by Democratic Sen. John Tunney.

Bell, whose district comprises much of Los Angeles' westside, said the GOP would have to wage a "rough, tough, no-holds-barred fight to the finish" to unseat Tunney, who will be seeking his second term next year.

The only other announced candidate for the Republican nomination is former Lt. Gov. Robert Finch.

POLICE CAR ABLAZE

An old police car was set afire in downtown Chino Monday as part of filming of "Vigilante Force," Gene Corman Productions movie to be released next spring. Stars of the film are Kris Kristofferson and Jan-Michael Vincent. Chino residents watched action in the street.

Street show in Chino turns into real blast

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

They blew up a police car in downtown Chino Monday, and got away with it.

Hundreds of residents lined Sixth Street, watching and waiting for a tremendous explosion and fire started by vigilantes.

They were movie actors — stuntmen — putting on a whale of a show for Chino residents who loved every minute of it.

Desperadoes, so the story goes, torch a police car as part of the violence in "Vigilante Force" being filmed by Gene Corman Productions.

Production men explained that the modern day drama involves townspeople against big oil concerns who want to drill in a small town in California. The oil people do anything they can to win their spot to drill.

The big star of the movie, Kris Kristofferson, was not on the set Monday at Sixth and D streets. He was probably back in the studio, learning his lines, said one onlooker.

The movie also stars Jan-Michael Vincent and Bernadette Peters, neither of whom were in Chino for the scenes shot there.

The scene filmed Monday will be placed under the title of the movie, at the opening of the flick.

Viewers will see, as Chino residents did, vigilantes shooting guns and whooping it up before windows are smashed in the car and a torch is thrown inside.

The explosion was exciting for local persons who seldom have an opportunity to see a motion picture being made.

Residents spilled out of a bar on Sixth Street, and other businesses, between C and D streets. "What's going on?" they wanted to know.

"Hey, I wonder how much it costs to blow up a cop car?" asked a bar patron. Then she laughed.

Chino's acting Police Chief Louis Morene was on hand for the filming, but it was not known if he actually saw the car blow up.

Homer Aerts, of Kniffin Ambulance Co., showed up when it was all over. He wasn't there to pick anyone up, he said. "I just came to see what all the excitement was."

Claremont told to delay plant case

Claremont City Manager Norman King has recommended that the City Council at its 7:30 p.m. meeting today withhold any comment on the proposed asphalt batch plant west of Upland until its Oct. 28 meeting.

King said that by Oct. 28 many issues concerning the plant should be resolved.

The Upland City Council already has taken a stand against the proposed plant on two acres west of Benson Avenue in San Antonio Wash.

The proposal is to rezone about 44 acres from limited manufacturing to general manufacturing. If approved, this would be followed by site approval to establish an asphalt concrete batch plant on two acres.

Several persons in unincorporated county territory north of Claremont have written in protest to the Claremont City Council.

An environmental impact report has been appealed, and that will be heard by the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors on Oct. 20.

The Claremont Foothill Association has urged the Claremont City Council to express its concerns to San Bernardino County about "the destructive environmental impact of the rezoning."

Industrial asphalt, the applicant, presently has its plant at 4700 Huntington Drive, Montclair.

McCracken seriously ill years before he died

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — The world watched for 10 weeks as Chuck McCracken slowly died, but his wife watched diabetes wrack his body for 10 years and knew even before their marriage that he would someday go blind.

"I knew he was going to go blind when we got married," Barbara McCracken said in a telephone interview Monday. She said McCracken developed diabetes at age 14 and was told before his marriage 15 years later that he would lose his vision within six months.

"At first he was very upset, very depressed," Mrs. McCracken said. "But he went to a school for the blind, learned how to use a cane and adjusted to the blindness real well."

McCracken died Oct. 1, more than two months after halting kidney machine treatments that were "sheer agony" for him.

McCracken's diabetes was very severe and eventually affected his thyroid, his legs and his kidneys.

He finally lost feeling in his lower legs and was unable to stand up.

"He was usually in the hospital two or three times a year," Mrs. McCracken said. "For awhile he'd be all right and then something else would happen."

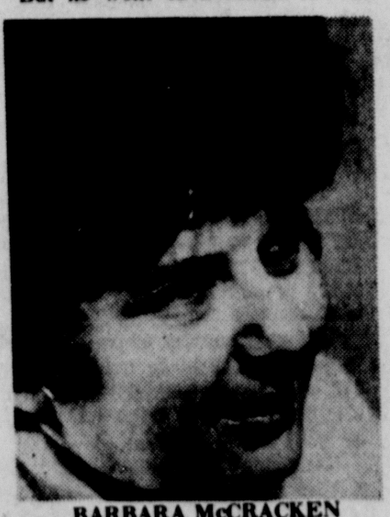

She said she never gave up hope.

"Even the day he passed away I didn't feel it was near the end, because I never really felt things were that bad. You never give up hope."

"I haven't moved any of his stuff or touched any of his pills because I'm not up to it yet," she added.

She has received hundreds of letters from people across the nation and said she believes her husband "helped people realize their problems aren't as bad as they think. He helped many, many more people than we'll ever know. When I get low, I think of that."

"I feel more fortunate than others, whose husbands may be killed in a traffic accident," she said. "The Lord gave us this time to be together."

Alta Loma elementary teachers gain second boost, hike now 8%

Compromise on a proposed pay hike was reached Monday night when Alta Loma school trustees granted an additional five per cent raise for teachers.

Board president Nancy Kettle said the increase will not raise taxes, however, because trustees expected an additional pay hike when the budget was adopted last summer and wrote a cushion into the budget for such an emergency. The district's tax rate remains at $2.44 per $100 assessed valuation — down four cents from last year.

Teachers had asked for an 11 per cent raise last month which was eight per cent above what the board allocated originally. Monday night's compromise brings the total raise to eight per cent, five per cent above what was written into the budget last summer.

Beginning teachers now will draw almost $10,000 annually for a 10-month contract while 18-year veterans with a master's degree will make about $20,000 annually.

Three of five trustees at Monday night's meeting then rushed to an open meeting on fundamental schools a mile from the school board meeting.

Fifty parents — 48 more than attended the school board meeting — turned out to hear Nell S. Green, principal of a fundamental school in Perris, describe how parents can petition a school board to open a fundamental school.

It was the second meeting within a month by the group which is anxious for the district to open a basic "reading, writing and arithmetic" school.

A group spokesman said many parents want a choice of education for their children. When Jasper School opens next spring or next fall, the district will be operating three elementary schools and should be able to run one as a fundamental school, the spokesman said.

Deanna Chedon, chairman of the fundamental school group, said many parents object to the open classroom theory of teaching and believe children are not learning as much as they would in a fundamental setup.

Mrs. Kettle said the board will listen to any recommendations suggested by fundamental ad hoc committee.

Appointment by Cory criticized

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Controller Ken Cory has appointed an inheritance tax referee who owns stock in an Orange County hospital that aided Cory's campaign, says the Sacramento Union.

The Union said the appointment appeared to violate state law which says persons appointed as referees shall not have contributed "directly or indirectly" to a controller's campaign.

It identified the referee as Murray Shell of Los Angeles. It said he is a stockholder in Bristol Mercy Hospital.

According to documents on file with the secretary of state, the Union said, the hospital lent Cory $2,615 worth of in-kind services during last year's campaign.

L.A. okays girls on sports teams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — While three contact sports are still off limits to them, girls in Los Angeles city high schools can now compete on boys teams in baseball, basketball and soccer.

The Los Angeles Board of Education voted 4 to 3 Monday to allow girls to participate in all sports except football, wrestling and water polo.

The board delayed until January a decision on those sports, but Board member Julian Nava said he thought girls would eventually be allowed to participate.

The vote came after Beth Helms, a 16-year-old Taft High School junior, told the board she was advised by a coach that she could not play on the Taft soccer team, although she had been practicing with the boys more than a month.

The team opens its season against Banning High School Thursday at Taft, and the school board spokesman said the team's coach will decide whether Miss Helms is qualified to play.

Way found to combat cancer malnutrition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Researchers say injections of highly nutritious solutions have broken a vicious circle in which the only hope for a malnourished cancer patient was a treatment which left him even more malnourished.

A group of Houston researchers headed by Dr. Edward M. Copeland told the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons that hyperalimentation — injection of amino acids, fats and carbohydrates — has been successful in replenishing the strength of cancer patients being treated with radiation and chemicals.

Cancer extracts nutrients at a rapid pace during chemotherapy and radiation treatments, often producing loss of appetite, nausea, diarrhea and, consequently, weight loss.

"Thus a vicious circle results," the group said in a paper. "A malnourished cancer patient whose only hope of cure or relief is treatment which also produces malnutrition. Only a limited amount of malnutrition is tolerated by the human body before death results."

Dr. Copeland said intravenous nutrition can provide the patient with adequate physical replenishment before and during his cancer treatments, and if the cancer responds to treatment, the patient's appetite returns naturally and weight is gained.

Dr. Stanley J. Dudrick, another researcher at the University of Texas, said the use of hyperalimentation on cancer patients was pioneered by the team about three years ago.

"Up until then there was a taboo that said if you fed a cancer patient, you would accelerate the growth of the tumor," he said. "We've found that to be untrue."

He said hyperalimentation was not only useful in treating curable patients but also in making terminal patients stronger and more comfortable in their last days.

The researchers said they studied 47 cancer patients who were given various cancer treatments and intravenous nutritional replenishment.

They concluded, "Intravenous nutritional replenishment can convert the weakly reactive, malnourished patient into an adequately nourished, strongly reactive patient, and, hopefully, return to the body one of its best defense mechanisms against the cancer cell."

A current theory is that certain cells capable of making the body immune produce an antibody which results in cancer cell destruction, or perhaps the cells directly attack and destroy the cancer cell.

As part of the theory, the researchers said they made skin tests to determine whether a patient's immunity system is efficiently recognizing and destroying the cancer cells.

"If those skin tests are applied to a malnourished cancer patient, minimal or no reaction will be observed," the researchers explained.

"Intravenous nutritional repletion of the malnourished cancer patients allowed the physicians a greater margin of safety while administering ... therapy, be it chemotherapy, surgery or radiation therapy, and at the same time maintained or returned skin test reactivity in 78 per cent of the patients," the researchers stated.

PROTECTING THEIR HOME

Mrs. Peggy Storment, mother of four children, sits on the porch of her Salem, Ill., home Monday with her dog Dolly, an Australian shepherd. Early Monday morning Mrs. Storment saw two men on her porch through the windows in background, and authorities believe the men were two of the escapees being sought in the Salem area.

Proposed budget cuts listed; Simon says it's not a cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has compiled a list of $28 billion in proposed budget cuts to strengthen President Ford's hand in insisting that Congress combine a tax cut with matching cuts in federal spending.

However, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon denied today that the list includes cuts in Social Security or government programs for school lunches, child care, medicare or veterans benefits. The list, he said, is "not a cutback."

Paul H. O'Neill, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Monday an inch-thick compilation of proposed reductions is being circulated privately to Cabinet officers and agency heads for their comment.

Asked today whether the proposed cuts were in school lunches, Social Security, child care, medicare or veterns benefits, Simon declared: "No, that's not the case."

He said the proposed reductions are for "slowing down the growth of federal spending. They are not a cutback."

Simon was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today Show."

President Ford last week proposed tax cuts for next year of $28 billion, including a partial extension of this year's federal income tax reductions. But he insisted that the reductions be accompanied by an identical cut in federal spending in the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1. He said he will propose specific spending reductions to Congress in January.

In his interview today, Simon said:

—The President would refuse as "dangerous and impossible" any extension of this year's tax reductions without a reduction in federal spending.

—"Good economics is good politics — I've always believed it was."

Simon seemed to acknowledge his initial opposition to President Ford's proposed $100 billion federal energy developmet program to underwrite energy development risks too large for private enterprise.

Asked whether he would support the plan along with Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, one of its initial proponents, Simon declared:

"We have vigorous and sometimes heated debate over every issue presented to the President. ... (But) the people on the team get behind the President's decisions."

Ford requests Mideast aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will ask Congress soon for Mideast military and economic aid as a sequel to the Israeli-Egyptian Sinai agreement.

In signing on Monday a resolution authorizing the assignment of 200 American civilians to early-warning stations in the Sinai, Ford said he would "soon consult Congress on what is required" to sustain U.S. relations with Middle East countries.

The President did not elaborate, but White House officials said he referred to aid requests now being prepared which they expected Ford to send to Congress within the next two or three weeks.

At a hastily-announced Oval Office ceremony, Ford signed a joint resolution that cleared Congress last week and declared:

"I reaffirm today that we will not accept stagnation or stalemate in the Middle East."

The President said the United States must maintain a diplomatic offensive in the Mideast "in order to sustain the momentum toward peace generated by the Sinai agreement."

Then, as if to underscore the importance he attaches to his forthcoming aid requests, he said that U.S. bilateral relations with Middle Eastern nations "form the foundation for success in our diplomatic efforts."

In documents related to the interim Sinai accord negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the United States:

—Stated it has an understanding with Israel on future American economic aid, including a promise to help replenish its oil supply if Israel is cut off by Iran, and assured Israel that the United States will consider continued military aid.

—Attested to an understanding with Egypt that will give consideration to economic aid for that nation.

Ford termed the Sinai agreement "a significant step towards an overall settlement in the Middle East but declared it was not an end in itself.

He said the United States must continue "vigorous diplomatic efforts to promote the prospects of peace."

Two more escapees caught near Salem

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — "They were afraid of the water. They were afraid the creeks were polluted," a Marion County jail official said after two thirsty federal prison escapees were captured several miles apart in a rural area near Salem.

Authorities apprehended escapees Edward Roche, 39, of Katonah, N.Y., and Maurice J. Philion, 40, of Oakland, Calif., Monday night. The pair escaped with three other inmates Friday from the Marion Federal Penitentiary by tripping prison gate locks with a homemade electronic device.

One of the escapees, Arthur J. Mankins, 37, of Germantown, N.C., was picked up Sunday after a stolen getaway car crashed following a high-speed chase. The others fled into surrounding fields and wooded areas, which authorities have been combing with tracking dogs.

The search resumed today for the remaining convicts, Dennis D. Hunter, 26, of Salem, Ohio, and Henry Gargano, 43, of Chicago. Gargano was serving 199 years for murdering two suburban Chicago policemen, and Hunter 25 years for kidnaping and other crimes. Both men had previous records of escapes from federal prisons.

Gargano, the reputed ringleader of the escapees, previously fled the Lewisburg, Pa., prison in 1964 and attempted to escape from the Federal Building in Chicago in 1967 while awaiting sentencing.

Hunter escaped in 1971 from the federal prison in Terre Haute, Ind.

Roche and Philion were found walking in opposite directions on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks, about three miles apart. They were arrested within an hour of each other and both were returned to the prison, about 75 miles away, late Monday night.

Roche, who made the electronic device used in the escape, was taken into custody two miles from where the fugitives' auto crashed on Sunday. Both men told authorities they were looking for water, but Roche said they were afraid to drink from creeks.

"I told him it was better than water in the city," said jail administrator Tom Fischer. But he said Roche told him, "No, it was polluted." Philion said the escapees hadn't had water in three days.

Deputy Sheriff Norman Rose said several area residents had called police to report a man asking them for water. Rose said he searched the area near the homes of the callers and then parked his car by the railroad tracks.

He soon spotted Philion walking along the tracks, and "I just turned the flashlight on him and said, 'Halt! This is the police' and to stick his hands up. He said, 'Okay, don't shoot!'" Rose said.

Roche was picked up by two FBI agents as he walked east away from Salem, according to Victor Schaeffer, special agent in charge of the manhunt. He said Roche was carrying a .410 shotgun but had no ammunition.

Patty's security eased up a little

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst is now allowed to eat meals with other prisoners at the San Mateo County jail, but beefed-up security because of her presence in the jail is costing up to $200 a day, says the sheriff.

Sheriff John R. McDonald Jr. said in an interview Monday that the decision to increase security was made in part because Patricia Tobin, an old friend of Miss Hearst's, smuggled a tape recorder into the jail during one of her visits.

"I don't know what she did with the tape recorder. She got in and out with it. We didn't find out about it until afterwards," McDonald said. Visitors are prohibited from taking such devices into the jail.

McDonald said the incident occurred a few days after Miss Hearst's arrest Sept. 18. The newspaper heiress is being held on federal bank robbery charges after she allegedly joined her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers.

Miss Tobin, whose earlier jail conversation with Miss Hearst was recorded by deputies and then made public as part of a court record, refused to comment on the sheriff's statement.

McDonald said Miss Hearst does not seem depressed or sullen, as her lawyers have said. A few days after her arrival at the jail, McDonald described her as "calm, cool and collected."

McDonald said Monday that description is still accurate and added, "She hasn't changed a bit in our eyes."

Dry cleaning store robbed

A man armed with a small handgun robbed the Mr. Dry Clean store, 10307 Mills Ave., in Montclair of a small amount of cash Monday, according to Montclair police.

Police said the gunman walked into the store about 4:47 p.m. and ordered the clerk to hand over the cash from the register. The robber, described as a Negro, in his 20's, 6 feet 1 to 6 feet 3, of slim build, wearing a black and brown turtleneck sweater with a "V" neck and dark pants was last seen running on foot from the store.

KIDS ARE HER LIFE

Mrs. Adline Morris, 41, holds her baby boy, DeCarlos Lamont, at Henry Ford Hospital while her husband James gives assistance.

She ran out of names for her 16th child

DETROIT (AP) — If Adline Morris is right, the Lord thinks she's a pretty good mother.

"My religion is why my family is so large," said Mrs. Morris, who gave birth to her 16th child Friday.

"I just feel the Lord gives you how many children He thinks you can handle."

Mrs. Morris, 41, said she did not plan to have a large family when she married. But 13 years ago she and her husband, James, became members of the Pentacostal church, which forbids contraception.

"Other women have money and big houses," she said. "The Lord gave me children instead."

The family spends $200 a week on food, an expense that consumes most of the check Morris brings home as an employe for an auto parts firm. Mrs. Morris said the $360 a month in general assistance the family gets is necessary to keep financially afloat.

"Sometimes you get depressed, looking at the down side of things," Mrs. Morris said. "Then I look at my children. I think it's all in what a woman wants to make of her life, and my children are my life."

One problem she couldn't solve, however, was a name for the newest arrival, 8½ pound DeCarlos Lamont.

"After 15 babies, I ran out of names," she said. "My roommate at the hospital had to come up with one for the newest."

Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Dutch-born American and a pioneering Russian theorist who has called for changes in the cumbersome Soviet planned economy were named joint winners today of the 1975 Nobel Prize in Economic Science.

Their work, largely independent of one another, was cited for leading to improved economic planning.

The Swedish Royal Academy of Science made the award to Tjalling C. Koopmans of Yale University and Leonid Kantorovich of the Soviet Union "for their contribution to the theory of optimum allocation of resources." They are to share a $143,000 prize.

'Flagrant' violation

TOKYO (AP) — China charged today that the U. S. government's refusal to curb activities of Tibetan exiles in the United States constituted "undisguised interference" in China's internal affairs and a "flagrant" violation of President Nixon's 1972 Shanghai agreement with Premier Chou En-lai.

Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, broadcast the charge less than a week before Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's scheduled visit to Peking. The statement from the information department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs made no mention of Kissinger's visit.

Fire uncontrolled

EAGLE, Colo. (AP) — A forest fire that has destroyed nearly 4,800 acres of timberland in the White River National Forest continued to burn out of control today, although a Forest Service spokesman expressed hope that the blaze would be contained soon.

"We're fighting the worst fire in Colorado's history," said J.B. Scott of the Forest Service. "We're not going to pin ourselves down, but we're optimistic about bringing it under control."

Activists' communications intercepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Security Agency intercepted more than 1,000 telephone and telegraph communications involving antiwar activists and other dissidents and reported on them to the CIA and the FBI, according to informed sources.

The NSA intercepts began in 1969 and continued for "a two- or three-year period," detailing the foreign travels and organizing efforts of various American radicals whose names had been provided to NSA by CIA, the sources said.

Summaries of the intercepted communications were transmitted via courier from NSA headquarters at Ft. Meade, Md., to CIA offices in Langley, Va., where they became part of the files of Operation CHAOS, which monitored the activities of domestic dissidents, sources said.

Similar summaries went to other government agencies, including the FBI and Defense Intelligence Agency, a separate source said.

The same source confirmed that Dr. Benjamin Spock, actress Jane Fonda, Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver and Chicago Seven defendants Abbie Hoffman and David Dellinger were targets of NSA intercepts. However, the source would not say whether those names had been supplied to the NSA by the CIA or some other agency.

Spock, author of a best-selling book on child care and a third-party presidential candidate in 1972, said later, "If our government would put its efforts and our tax money into creating a more just society rather than snooping on citizens who differ with them, America would be impregnable."

Cuban trade embargo getting costly for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continuing a trade embargo against Cuba is becoming more costly for the United States and the effectiveness of the action has been dwindling, the government reports.

The Commerce Department released Monday a 67-page analysis of the 13-year embargo against Cuba. The analysis said the embargo is less effective primarily because increased sugar prices have given the Caribbean nation more money to spend.

"Unilateral continuation of the Cuba embargo becomes a bit more costly to the United States, though that economic cost is still relatively small," the report said.

The embargo has been in effect since 1962, about three years after Fidel Castro assumed power. The United States recently eased the embargo by allowing foreign affiliates of U.S. companies to do business with Cuba, although special licenses for such trade are required.

The report noted that the embargo could be lifted by presidential directive but said a major impediment to that is the estimated $1.8 billion in claims against Cuba by Americans whose interests were expropriated there when Castro took over.

"As long as these claims are outstanding, normal banking and shipping relationships cannot be restored, since Cuban assests in the United States would be subject to possible attachment," the report said.

The analysis said that Cuba's total trade increased dramatically by 68 per cent in a single year to $5.2 billion in 1974, when world sugar prices hit record highs.

The trade volume resulted in what the report said was the first trade surplus since Castro's takeover.

Additional money to spend on world markets, together with a crumbling of trade barriers with Western nations other than the United States, has moved Cuba away from its former heavy dependence on the Soviet Union and other Communist nations, the report said.

Six months of life left for parolee

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A model parolee who returned to prison because he was unable to get work and could not obtain welfare or Social Security assistance is being sent to a Greensboro rest home today.

Officials said doctors diagnosed terminal lung cancer in Robert Ransom last week and he was given just six months to live. Three weeks ago, Ransom came back to Central Prison because he couldn't take care of himself on the outside.

After the illness was diagnosed, arrangements were made to send Ransom to the Star Mount Rest Home, and Social Security payments were promised to start up next week. Welfare officials also said they would help, according to parole officer D.F. Holder and attorney Jean Wilson of Durham, who volunteered her services to Ransom.

Ransom, listed in various records as 64 or 65 years old, was described as a model parolee for three years after being released in 1972 from an eight-to-12-year prison sentence for manslaughter in the 1969 death of a girlfriend.

But when his health began to fail — doctors first thought he had pneumonia — and he was unable to get public assistance, Holder figured Ransom could at least get food, clothing and shelter if he returned to prison.

Another parole officer, Charles Mann, brought Ransom's plight to the attention of state corrections and social services officials, who decided that Ransom should be transferred to the rest home.

"It's a sad thing to bring him back to prison to help him. But it's the best treatment he's had in a year," said Jack Scism, chairman of the state Parole Commission. "It's a shame when someone does so well and obeys the law, and prison is the only place that can help him."

Scism said efforts to contact Ransom's only known living relative, a brother in Miami, were unsuccessful.

Top books may turn to movies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "Jaws" explosion has brought untold millions for its producers, wariness for saltwater swimmers and renewed competition for the literary world's bestsellers.

The shark-bites-man movie provided a classic example of the effectiveness of a movie property that has been presold in another medium. Millions of readers had already agonized over the Peter Benchley novel and eagerly awaited further suffering in the movie version. "The Godfather," "The Exorcist" and "Love Story" also soared to huge theater grosses after book versions had headed the bestseller lists.

The trend has renewed Hollywood's romance with the book world. MCA-Universal, the happy recipient of the "Jaws" millions, recently announced a plan to merger with G.P. Putnam's Sons, veteran publishing firm.

Other studios have revived their story departments, which had fallen into disrepair during economy waves of recent years. During the 1930s and 1940s, film companies employed dozens of "readers," both in Hollywood and New York, to peruse books and magazines for potential film material.

The current winner of the race for bestsellers is Paramount Pictures. The company announced proudly in trade paper ads that the first four novels on a recent bestseller list had been acquired by Paramount: "Ragtime," "Looking for Mr. Goodbar," "The Moneychangers" and "The Great Train Robbery."

Among the studio's other forthcoming projects adapted from books are: "Breakfast of Champions;" "Black Sunday;" "The Marathon Man;" "The French Lieutenant's Woman;" "Islands in the Stream" and "The Last Tycoon."

"Bestsellers don't always make good movies," cautions Richard Sylbert, Paramount's vice president of production. "A very popular book may attract 100,000 readers in hardcover, but will it attract the interest of 10 million people in theaters? Does the story have enough strength to carry it into the visual medium? That is what you must decide before buying a book for films."

Recent history is littered with bestsellers that failed as movies: "Portnoy's Complaint;" "Catch 22;" "The Adventurers;" "The Love Machine;" "Once Is Not Enough;" "Rabbit, Run;" "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing" and "The Other."

Despite such failures, producers continue to pay fancy prices for books. "And you can't wait around for the books to be published," advises Dino DiLaurentiis, who has shifted his production base from Italy to the United States. "When I read a manuscript I like, I buy it before some other producer can get his hands on it."

That's how he acquired "Ragtime," the current No. 1 bestseller. Robert Altman ("M-A-S-H," "Nashville") will make the film.

"A good story is the important thing — and the characters have to be real," says producer M.J. Frankovich, who acquired "The Great Train Robbery."

"The reason that a lot of novels fail on the screen is that they are too literary. That's why the books of Hemingway and Fitzgerald have rarely made good movies."

Frankovich is taking the unusual step of letting the author make the movie. Michael Crichton, who wrote "The Great Train Robbery," proved with "Westworld" that he is equally adept as a film director.

Prices from potential bestsellers continue to escalate. Warner Brothers paid $500,000 for the first novel "Just Tell Me What You Want" by screen writer Jay Presson Allen. The company also laid out $250,000 plus 5 per cent of the profits and an escalator clause based on book sales to Sylvia Wallace for her first novel. "The Fountain." She is the wife of author Irving Wallace.

BUSINESS MAN — Steve Shalita, 13, thinks the government is too hard on the small businessman. Steve repairs bikes for the neighborhood kids in the family's garage. He even got a friend to help him, and that's when he got in trouble.

Government puts youth out of work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Shalita had his own business for three years until he ran afoul of government regulations. Now he's trying to find someone willing to hire a 13-year-old bicycle mechanic.

Steve was operating "Steve's Bike Shop" in his family's garage in suburban Van Nuys until an inspector from the state Labor Relations Board forced him to stop repairing bikes.

Like other small businessmen, Steve complains that the government shouldn't use the law to harass a person who is providing employment to others.

"They should go after the businesses that rip off people," the 4-foot-9 youngster said.

Steve said the dispute began this way:

"What happened was...a kid in my neighborhood...we agreed on payment and afterwards he wanted more. I don't know what happened, maybe his mom told him to go to the labor people. Anyway we settled it...I gave him a pair of handlebars."

But Steve's mother, Ann, said an unidentified official called on the family to tell them the department had received a complaint and that "Steve's Bike Shop" had to shut down.

"I tried to point out that it's like a lemonade stand," Mrs. Shalita said in an interview. "He said it wasn't the same thing and that he hadn't had any complaints about lemonade standards."

Mrs. Shalita said she told the official that the bike shop "was more of a play project for Steve. He's just really a little boy."

But she said the official took the whole matter quite seriously.

"It wasn't a ha-ha thing with him," Mrs. Shalita said. "He wasn't really too sympathetic about it at all. He was quite clear on what the rules were. He said we were responsible."

Melville Sornberger, chief deputy of the labor Relations Boad, said the department "received an anonymous call concerning the unlawful employment of minors. Any type of complaint that we receive, we make every effort to check them out. The officer left information with Steve's parents concerning the applicable state and county regulations."

Now Mrs. Shalita says Steve is looking for a job, and she hopes someone will hire him.

"It was a good thing, it kept him out of trouble and other kids out of trouble," she said.

Alcoholism hits Indians hardest

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — In the past, smallpox nearly wiped out the American Indian, now alcoholism is threatening to do what smallpox couldn't, says Al Pooley.

"It's at epidemic levels," said Pooley, training coordinator for the American Indian Commission on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse in Arvada, Colo.

"Alcoholism is the No. 1 problem among Indians in both urban areas and reservations," said John Ginnish, a recovering alcoholic from Boston who will head a new regional alcoholism council for Indians.

The council was organized at a meeting on Indian alcholism that Pooley, Ginnish and about 30 other authorities on Indian alcholism attended recently.

Those at the meeting said the problem of alcoholism is five times worse among Indians than non-Indians in this country. Nearly all Indians are affected directly or indirectly by alcoholism, compared with one of every four non-Indians, they say.

Pooley said the Indian's problems with liquor began when greedy white people gave it to Indians to weaken them and make it easy to get Indian land cheaply. In the process, Indians got the reputation of not being able to hold their liquor.

"I think that's been a tactic to keep someone down," Pooley said, adding that he had not been able to find scientific proof to support the claim that Indians are any less able than whites to hold their liquor.

John S., a 58-year-old alcoholic member of the Six Nations tribe who now lives in Tonawanda, N.Y., described his problems with alcohol in personal terms: "My emotional stability decreased. It was interfering with my life."

He says he hasn't had a drink since Feb. 2, 1951, thanks partly to Alcoholics Anonymous. AA helped him stop drinking before alcohol could destroy his body or his family, he said.

But many alcoholic Indians today cannot find help that easily, he added.

Not everyone at the workshop was in full agreement with the consensus that alcoholism is the American Indian's chief problem.

"It's just a symptom," said Larry Green, another Six Nations Indian now attending the University of Buffalo.

He said the high rate of alcoholism throughout North America reflects a social imbalance caused by people's disrespect for "mother earth" and family relationships, which the Indian culture cherishes.

Funerals

Sam Teeter

Committal services for former La Verne resident Sam Teeter, 73, of Hemet, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Evergreen Cemetery in La Verne.

Mr. Teeter died last Friday while under intensive care at Loma Linda University Hospital. His wife, Martha, died last November. Before his retirement, Mr. Teeter was a field foreman for La Verne and Upland citrus packing houses. He was born in Kansas and had lived in California for the past 47 years, except for a short time he spent in Idaho.

Surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Minnie Wallman of Burbank, Mrs. Nina Brubaker and Mrs. Ruby Mann, both of La Verne, and Mrs. Grace McMurray of Windom, Kan.; and one brother, J. W. Teeter of Marquette, Kan.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Greenlawn Mortuary in Hemet.

Memorial contributions may be made for the comfort of residents of Meadowbrook Retirement Home, 461 E. Johnston St., Hemet 92343.

Milton Chubbuck

Services for Milton E. Chubbuck of 1455 E. Phillips Blvd., Pomona, will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. in Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona. Dr. Paul F. Huebner, of Claremont, will officiate. Burial will be made in Pomona Cemetery.

On April 3, 1948, the Marshall Plan Act was signed into law in Washington.

It will be on the school-grounds from 4 to 9 p.m.

Cal Poly institute receives $398,314 contract from HEW

The Institute for Advanced Systems Studies of Cal Poly Pomona has been awarded a $398,314 contract by the Department of technology and environmental education of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for the design and evaluation of a National Model for Environmental Education.

In announcing the contract, Lenard R. Troncale, coordinator of the program stated that the major emphasis of the contract will be to develop information which will be used to teach subjects concerned with environment.

Stressed will be the conflict between the nation's needs for abundant energy, a sound economy, a high per capita consumption and the desire for a health environment.

Teachers will be trained in the program to consider these conflicts as components of society. The teachers will then present courses in adult education programs, high schools, and in kindergarten through the 12th grade.

The institute will design training systems for four different age levels of students in the training of teachers and will serve as coordinator for the 25 faculty specialists from Cal Poly, Pomona and three off-campus consultants.

The institute will test the models on some 250 teachers and administrators from Los Angeles city schools and county schools.

Several Southern California school districts and departments of education from all 50 states are now participating in the project on a testing basis.

The project is expected to be completed in December of 1976. At this time, a workshop and an in-service training program will be offered to school districts of the Los Angeles area to evaluate the project curriculum and developments.

Sunkist Research Center to be dedicated Oct. 22

The new Sunkist Growers, Inc., Research Center at 760 E. Sunkist St., Ontario, will be dedicated Oct. 22.

The dedication will begin with an open house from 3 to 6 p.m. A press conference is scheduled for 5 p.m. to allow newsmen to interview key Sunkist people to discuss the role the center will play in the company. Special guests will be Robert W. Long, assistant secretary of agriculture, and Dr. James B. Kendrick, vice president of agricultural sciences for the University of California.

The Research Center will accommodate about 75 Sunkist scientists, technicians and engineers.

Rotarians hunting Mexico-tour team

Rotary Club members in District 530 — which extends from East Los Angeles to Las Vegas, Nev. — are seeking men between 25 and 35 to participate in a 43-day group study exchange tour of Mexico.

A five-member team will represent a cross-section of district business and professions.

The team will visit Mexico City and the Mexican states of Puebla, Veracruz, Campeche, Yucatan, Chiapas, Oaxaca, Quintana Roo and Tabasco.

The tentative date of departure is March 15, 1976. While in Mexico, Team members will be guests of Rotarians from District 419.

A group study exchange award will cover costs of transportation, meals, lodging and travel in the host district.

Each man will be responsible for his own incidental expenses, clothing and insurance.

Each Rotary Club may propose two candidates for the trip.

Those interested in participating are urged to contact their local Rotary Clubs prior to Oct. 31.

Aerojet's security gets award

Aerojet Electrosystems Co., Azusa, is the recipient of the U.S. Defense Department's highest industrial security award for 1975.

The James C. Cogswell Outstanding Industrial Security Award was presented by Brig. Gen. Michael E. DeArmond, USAF, Commander, Defense Contract Administration Services Region, Los Angeles.

Recipients for Aerojet were Sheldon Jones, president; Donald Bartrip, vice president and director of industrial relations; and Charles Bowers, manager of security for the company.

This is the second time Aerojet has received the Cogswell award.

Experiment encouraging

NEW YORK (AP) — A polyunsaturated or low-fat diet for cattle may solve the high cholesterol problem in meat and dairy products for humans, reports Medical World News magazine.

Investigators at the University of California's Davis campus are encouraged by results of an experiment which showed that people consuming meat and dairy products from low-fat cattle and sheep sharply reduced their blood cholesterol levels.

Does Lindora think Losing Weight is easy?

It is not a simple task for a patient to reach and maintain "lean weight" for life. First the patient must have an honest desire to cure his problem then accept professional guidance from trained Medical Doctors.

Lindora's unique 10-week treatment and training program will teach patients how to reach and maintain their "lean weight" for life. A safe and practical plan, with proper nutritional diet, and continual emotional support. New audio and sub-liminal visual aids are used to motivate the patient. The entire program is under the strict supervision of Medical Doctors, specialists in Bariatric Medicine.

Lindora Clinics are owned and administered by Medical Doctors that restrict their practice to Bariatrics. ALL Clinic Personnel are licensed by the State of California

Construction has begun on new Bank of America

Construction has begun on a two-story, $1.6 million Bank of America building at 150 N. Haciendo Blvd., in City of Industry.

Vice president and manager Kenneth L. Derr said it will replace the present facility a half block east and across Abbey Street. It is twice the size of the old building and will provide 25,000 square feet of floor space. The bank will occupy the first floor and Bank of America offices the second, Derr said.

The exterior of the buildling will be ground-to-roof glass panels supported by concrete columns and topped by a simulated bronze facia.

The interior will be equipped with earth tone and rosewood color furnishings, fixtures and wall coverings. It will provide 19 teller stations, four merchant deposit stations and three safe deposit stations.

It will have four drive-up and two walk-up, extended-hour deposit windows, and more than 400 parking spaces in an adjacent, city-owned lot.

City of Industry has scheduled the realignment of Abbey Street to provide easier access to the new bank.

Commerce Construction Co., Inc., designed and is buildling the structure.

Bank of America's present Industry office opened in 1958. The property on which it stands will be acquired by the city redevelopment agency for the construction of a civic center.

Derr said that during the past three years deposits and loans at the Industry office have tripled. He is confident of continued economic growth for the city and the bank.

NEW BANK OF AMERICA — This is a drawing of a $1.6-million City of Industry office of Bank of America now under construction. It should be ready for occupancy by Jan. 1.

Adults' tennis lessons open Oct. 20 in Montclair

The Montclair Recreation Department will offer a new five-week session in tennis instruction for adults beginning Oct. 20, weather permitting.

Classes will be held at the Montclair High School tennis courts with Jolynn Guidera instructing.

Beginning students will meet on Mondays or Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m. with intermediate and advanced students meeting on Tuesdays or Thursdays at the same time.

Participants will register with the instructor at the first class meeting. There will be a registration fee of $5.

Scientists will hear Argentinan

"The Power of God" will be the subject of a free public lecture by Horacio Omar Rivas of Buenos Aires, Argentina, Oct. 23, at 8 p.m. at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Pomona.

He will be introduced by church member Lucille Hutchison, business department chairman of Bonita High School in La Verne.

Mr. Rivas studied economics at the University of Buenos Aires and was in business there at one time. In 1967 he went to Boston, Mass., as a translator for the Christian Science Publishing Society. A year later he entered the healing ministry of Christian Science.

Now a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Mr. Rivas is one of 30 lecturers who deliver more than 4,000 talks each year on six continents.

He will be accompanied here by his wife, Heloisa, a native of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

2 area people are graduates of school for S&L executives

Two staff members of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association were graduated recently from the School for Executive Development for savings and loan personnel at the University of Washington.

Owen L. Brown, assistant vice president and manager of the Indian Hill Office, and Melba L. Carlton, assistant vice president and manager of the Twentynine Palms Office, have completed the two-weeks' sessions of both the first and second year of the school which is conducted by The Institute of Financial Education in cooperation with Washington University.

Jeannette F. Spotswood, assistant collections supervisor, head office, completed the first year's session and will return for the second session next year.

The courses are given for persons in managerial and supervisory positions in savings and loans. Subjects included in the study are economic guides for management decisions, management and administration, financial institutions, organizational behavior and communication skills management.

The Institute of Financial Education is the educational affiliate of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, and provides educational programs for more than 37,000 members in the United States.

Bridge claims first suicide

AUBURN (AP)—A 70-year-old Sacramento-area man jumped 100 feet to his death, becoming the first suicide off the new Auburn-Foresthill Bridge.

Police identified the victim as Harold Willard Gill of Citrus Heights. Gill left a note in his car recently saying he was depressed by his poor health, they added.

Construction was recently completed on the bridge, which is 700-feet high at one point where it stretches over a canyon about 40 miles east of Sacramento.

Historical events in Pomona are highlights of new book

Stories of Pomona's history will be highlighted in a history book being prepared for publication by the Pomona Centennial-Bicentennial Committee.

The book will trace the area's history beginning with the Indian settlements and arrival of the first Spanish families in the 1830's, on up to the present time.

The history will cover government, politics, business, industry, services, financial institutions, education, clubs and organizations, transportation, churches and the utilities.

A chapter will be devoted to Pomona's roles in the Spanish-American and the two World Wars, and the interment of Japanese-Americans and German and Italian prisoners-of-war at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

Other interesting selections will include the story of the Murchison Letter, written by Pomona George Osgoodby, credited by historians as greatly influencing the outcome of the Presidential election of 1888.

Also covered will be the construction of the first hydro-electric facilities for high voltage transmission in the state; the Battle of First Street; and the boycott of Pomona's Chinatown.

The book, entitled "Pomona: A Centennial History," is being offered for sale at a pre-publication price of $10, with advance order forms available at Pomona City Hall.

Clyde Stephens, in charge of the book project, has invited the public to submit historical anecdotes, photographs or other materials for possible inclusion in the book.

For further information, persons may call 620-2385.

Ex-con slays 17 for total of $55

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A 25-year-old ex-convict killed 17 persons in the past two months, slaying one couple for 36 cents and the others for a total of $55, police reported.

The ex-convict, identified as Kim Dae-doo, was arrested recently and confessed to all the murders, police said.

11 members to attend conference

Eleven members of the Diamond Bar Junior Woman's Club will attend the California Federation of Woman's Clubs Junior Membership Area C conference on Saturday at El Segundo High School.

Theme for the conference is "Juniors Salute the Spirit of '76."

British unit charts meeting

The Transatlantic Brides and Parents Association will meet at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, in the Security Pacific Bank at Upland.

Members of the Upland police department will show a film, "Lady, Beware," for members of the organization. The film deals with self protection.

The meeting is open to anyone of British birth.

Survival

You can survive three weeks without food, and three days or so without water, but cold can do you in within three hours. It's known as hypothermia, the lowering of the body's inner heat, according to the October Reader's Digest. A person whose head is unprotected may lose up to half his body's total heat production. Best advice, with winter on the way: wear a hat when the wind begins to whistle.

Green-Schreiber vows exchanged

Ascension Lutheran Church in Thousand Oaks was the setting for the marriage of Miss Leslie Rae Schreiber and Donald Robert Green Jr. of that city.

The late afternoon ceremony was read by the Rev. Larry Thomas, pastor of Shepherd by the Sea Lutheran Church, Malibu.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Raymond Schreiber of Oceanside, chose Mrs. Timothy Franklin of Fountain Valley as matron of honor. Maid of honor was Miss Barbara Jan Shefler and bridesmaids were Miss Linda Robinson and Miss Carol Florence.

Best man for the son of the Donald Greens of Thousand Oaks, formerly of Pomona, was his brother, Arthur W. Green. Ushers were James W. Pannell, Anthony J. Pipitone and Duane A. Schreiber.

A reception was held at Howard Johnson's Inn, Thousand Oaks.

The bride graduated from California Lutheran College. The bridegroom attended Pomona High School and Mt. San Antonio College before graduating from California Lutheran College. He is chairman of the physical education department at Valley View Junior High School in Simi Valley. The couple is residing in Thousand Oaks.

Recipes emphasize nature

"The True to Nature Recipe Book" takes the mystery and uncertainty out of making sauces, gravies and glazes — the extras in cooking that do so much to highlight the natural flavor and eye appeal of food.

As demonstrated by the recipes in the booklet, corn starch is an ideal thickener for a wide variety of dishes.

For a free copy of the full color 12-page booklet, write to True to Nature Recipe Book, Dept. TN-N, Box 307, Coventry, Conn. 06238.

Women's seminar charted

A seminar for women only will be held at Loma Linda University Saturday 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The seminar, "Marriage, A Successful Experience," will be presented by Dr. Joyce Kimbel of Karnes, Texas.

Sponsored by the social service department of Loma Linda University Medical Center, the Saturday evening portion of the seminar will be presented free of charge of a public service. For those wishing to participate in the full seminar, a $5 registration fee will be made on Sunday morning.

Both parts of the program will be held in Burden Hall on the Loma Linda campus of the university.

Reachout reception scheduled

The Reachout Committee of the Performing Arts Council of the Los Angeles Music Center is launching a new project, the Living Calendar, with a reception Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. in The Founders of the Music Center.

Reachout's objective is to make new friends, particularly of ethnic and minority backgrounds by inviting community leaders to attend The Living Calendar, a series of monthly programs which will start in November and run through May.

Each month a resident group of the Music Center will be highlighted. These include the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, the Los Angeles Master Chorale, the Music Center Opera Association, Center Theatre Group, Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Association and the Music Center Operating Co.

Religious groups sponsor conference

Four religious organizations are sponsoring an ecumenical conference, Woman in the Church Celebrate, in connection with International Women's Year on Saturday at the Valley Community Drive-In Church in San Dimas.

The four groups participating are: Women Committed to Women, Church Women United, National Association of Women Religious, and Immaculate Heart College.

Registration at the door wil be $5. There will be a box lunch or persons may bring their own lunch. There will be child care provided.

Speakers will be Dr. Claire Randall, first woman general secretary of the National Council of Churches, who will address the issue of women in the church structure; Sister Anita Caspary, president of Immaculate Heart College from 1958 to 1963 and former Mother General of the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart; Anne McGrew Bennett, feminist theologian and active in the peace movement.

There will be a question period following each presentation.

Registration is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. and the first speaker will open the program at 10:30 a.m. following a worship service.

Reception is slated for Master Masons

Master Masons of the Pomona Valley will be honored at a special reception to be sponsored by Della Robbia Court, Order of the Amaranth, at 8 p.m. Saturday, at the Upland Masonic Temple.

This will be the first Masonic night held by any of the women's groups in the area, and a special program has been planned.

Stuart Simpson will be the speaker. He is Eminent Commander of Pasadena Commandery, Grand Commissioner of Appeals or the Order of the Amaranth, and past master of Royal and Select Masters, San Fernando Valley Council.

David Decker, junior past master of Upland Lodge, will be host and Mrs. Decker will be the hostess. Mrs. Dorothy Driscoll is decorations chairman. Old Baldy Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will be color guard and Dennis Smeal, junior councilor, will be the musician.

A social hour will follow the meeting.

Cochairmen named by Sponsors

Mr. and Mrs. James Kresl of Long Beach have been named cochairmen of the Sponsors of Scripps College for 1975-76.

The Sponsors, an outgrowth of the college's original Honorary Alumnae, are parents, alumnae and other friends who contribute to the welfare of the college. They will hold their first meeting of the year on Oct. 21 on campus.

At that time Richard Armour, dean of the Scripps Faculty Emeritus, will give the Founder's Day address. The Kresls will preside at activities during the day.

Dinner Club sets first meet

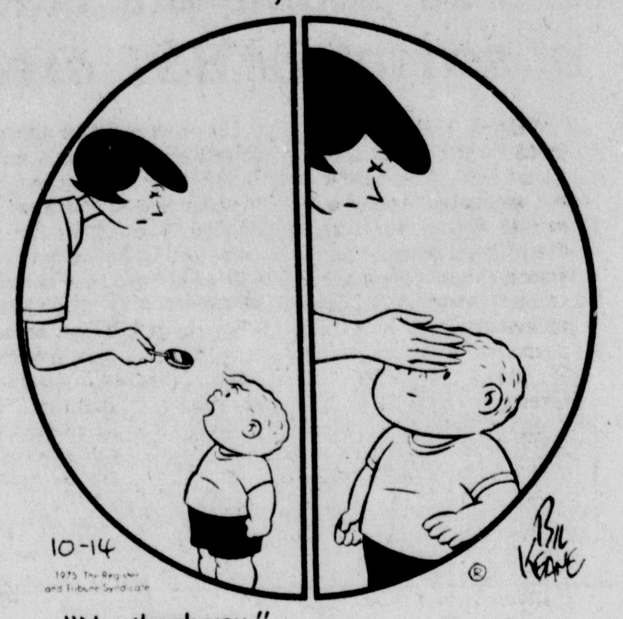

The Executives Dinner-Club of Pomona Valley will have its first meeting of the season on Thursday at 6:45 p.m., at the Arbor Restaurant Upland. A program, American Profiles, will be presented by Earl Colbert.

Carnes R. Elder will begin his second term as president of the Executives. Other officers and chairmen include William S. Southworth, vice president and program chairman, with Mrs. Glen Townsend and Mrs. Helen Boughton as assistant program committee. Mrs. Herbert T. Ries and Mrs. Norman V. Unroe will serve as co-secretaries; Stan Harrison, treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Fred I. Rose, hospitality; Mrs. Richard C. Hathaway decorations and Lynn Honaker, chaplain. Six meetings will be held during the next year.

The board of directors is composed of Mrs. Robert Middleton, Mrs. Bert Randall, Norman V. Unroe, Adolph F. Binder, Mrs. Adolph Binder, Stephen G. Poremba, Miss Helen E. Rose, Arthur Younkin and Harold Goodell.

Reservations must be made by Monday and may be made by calling Mrs. Frank D. Rentchler at 622-8320 or Mr. Southworth at 622-3725.

Joyce Brothers

Hit happy medium

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife and I generally get along well but we really begin to wonder if we're mismatched the moment we sit down to watch TV or when we look through program listings to even discuss what program we want to watch. We didn't realize how different we were until our daughter left for college and took our second TV set with her. Now, we're stuck with one for the entire family and life is becoming quite complicated. We're squeezing by financially as it is and we can't even consider buying another set.

So, we're going to have to make peace by sharing each other's shows or leaving the room. My wife likes talk shows and I hate most of them so much I end up hating her. I like game shows and Westerns, and she thinks they're silly. My young son likes detective and suspense, so we spend a lot of time arguing about whether they're too violent. What does all this mean? Do you think we ought to throw out our only TV to preserve family harmony? — J.V.

Dear J.V.: Keep your set, but try to find some place to put it other than in the main living area, so life can go on without having TV intrude.

Let each member of the family have a certain time for his or her favorite viewing and if there is a conflict, then either flip a coin, or alternate weeks. Adults, incidentally, should be given special privileges. Democracy on the home front is fine, but I think Mother and Dad deserve to have the final word on TV viewing. If Junior doesn't like or agree with the decision, there's always good reading material.

As for the conflicts between you and your wife about programs it seems to me that compromise is the only answer. You will find this easier if the set doesn't occupy a primary place in your living room. Ideally, it's good to have a separate room for viewing, but I realize that in most city apartments this is a luxury few can afford.

What we watch and what we most enjoy on TV tells a great deal about us. Men generally seem to prefer action dramas, especially shoot-'em-up Westerns. These shoot-'em-up, instant-justice stories provide some elements of life that modern males find attractive because it offers such sharp contrast to their own lives. Many enjoy them as an escape from the rigid conformity they face during their work day. They find it relaxing to experience the relative freedom of the cowboy or even the small-town, country sheriff. In the early days depicted everything was simpler, including justice, and this is often soothing and reassuring to a man living in a world where everything, even getting to and from work, is extremely complicated.

According to Dr. David Forrest, director of education in the N.Y. State Psychiatric Institute's department of educational research, someone who selects carefully planned and plotted detective or suspense programs is probably a very methodical, highly organized person, because often in such programs, the incredibly careful detective or spy works on a detailed scheme and wins repeatedly. This helps to justify the viewer's own behavior.

Often, people who are lonely or don't see many people during the day, have a strong preference for talk shows at night. You may find them less interesting because you fill your social needs at work. What we select on TV often tells what we most admire in ourselves and others. If you're aware of this, you may be able to see some of your wife's favorites with a new interest.

Indian jewelry

Beware of fakery

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many people "are being ripped off" by the Indian jewelry craze, says Diane Schulz. "Few people know what it is all about and it makes it easier to be cheated."

The jewelry is now being made in Japan, Mexico and even in factories in our own Southwest, she insists.

Mrs. Schulz, who shows her jewelry collection at antiques shows, has been involved with Indian jewelry since early girlhood. Her father, William Kruzman, a trader in the Southwest for the last 20 years, has taken her with him on buying trips.

"In some instances the intent is not to cheat people," she says of people who sell the jewelry. "They usually don't know enough about the jewelry to answer questions. Then, too, most buyers don't know enough about it to ask the right questions."

She specializes in Zuni jewelry because she considers it the best investment. The Zunis are a small tribe and the art is really dying — younger people don't want to do the handwork it requires because it is too time-consuming. In addition, Zuni designs require great expertise. And there is much less Zuni work available.

There are "some out-of-this-world Navajo artisans, but much Navajo is copied," she claims. "Zuni is more difficult to copy and would need to be expensive."

A Harvard business school graduate, for seven years Mrs. Shulz has been a Certified Public Accountant and manager with Coopers and Lybrand, an international public accounting firm. She exhibits at the National Arts and Antiques Festival in New York and has a small exhibit at the Montclair Art Museum in New Jersey.

"Many people think only old pieces are good, but you may pay the same price for a good new piece and it will be equally good in terms of investment," she explains.

One style of jewelry that has taken hold in New York, she contends, is silver that looks like aluminum foil with turquoise or coral crushed and set inside the silver. "Years ago one Indian family made this jewelry in excellent heavy silver, but now it looks like foil and most of it is not made by Indians," she says.

A person buying Indian jewelry should go to a reputable store and ask whether the turquoise is natural or treated — much of it is being treated by various processes — what kind of turquoise it is and what grade it is. He should obtain a guarantee in writing, especially if the piece is expensive. Turquoise should be dark with good matrix, she says, but "you must almost be expert to tell." People are not demanding enough information so shops are not bothering to educate sales people, she adds.

At one auction a Zuni fire dancer bracelet, a mother of pearl disk with a dancer inlaid, was marked down from $550 to $350, but the price was identical to one she had observed in a good retail store. It is often difficult to ascertain the retail value of a one-of-a-kind piece.

Buyers should not be concerned that a piece is unsigned. Unless it is signed by one of the few well-known Indian artisans — Charles Loloma, who works in many styles, or Portfelia Shaka, a Zuni artisan — the signature may be meaningless, she says. But some traders encourage Indians to sign as they consider it a good selling point.

Indian jewelry is not a fad, in her opinion. With some women who must have everything it might be, but the jewelry "has reawakened a whole new market."

Zuni jewelry is popular because the various motifs — road runners, hummingbirds, sun gods, butterflies, bees and the like — make it so collectible.

The Zuni ceremonial necklace Mrs. Schulz was wearing — mother-of-pearl, coral and turquoise inlay — should sell for about $2,000, she said, but it would be about twice that in some stores. Her father recently gave her a beautiful and valuable squash blossom necklace.

A devotee of all Indian art and crafts, she has collected pottery, rugs and baskets as well as the jewelry. Four rooms of her 15-room Victorian house in New Jersey are furnished in Indian themes, and the Indian motif is used elsewhere in her house. Even in her dining room the Indian things merge beautifully with the Empire furniture, she says.

Mask it

Make your own mask for a facial to treat oily or normal skin with inexpensive, natural products you have right in the kitchen. Mix ¼ cup corn starch with one egg white and about two tablespoons milk, enough to make a smooth consistency. Cleanse your face and neck with soap. Follow with a thorough rinse. Pat dry. Then apply a thin layer of facial mixture to both face and neck. With facial mask on, relax about 15 minutes while the mask sets. Rinse with clear, tepid water and pat dry.

Chapter MG luncheon scheduled

Chapter MG of PEO Sisterhood will hear a report by Mrs. Montelle Knapp on the supreme chapter convention when the group meets Thursday.

The members will meet for luncheon at noon in the home of Mrs. Clarence Perrin, 741 E. Jefferson Ave., Pomona.

Mrs. Carnes Elder and Mrs. George Edgerton will be assisting hostesses.

$25 million Army 'mistake'

WASHINGTON — We have spent months, as part of our watch on waste, digging out the details of a $25 million Army boondoggle.

When the military brass squander the taxpayers' millions, they invariably spend more millions to cover it up. The misspending, therefore, is sometimes difficult to trace.

The story is complex. Let's call it the Anatomy of a Boondoggle.

It began in December, 1968, when the Army awarded a $136 million multi-year contract to General Motors to produce a fleet of "super trucks."

To win the contract, GM had to meet operating specifications for a truck far tougher than the commercial trucks that the Army had been using.

The generals were sufficiently pleased with GM's offer that they ignored a study from Kaiser Jeep, which claimed the company could meet all the performance specifications and still save the taxpayers millions.

Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., and the General Accounting Office, quite properly, demanded to know why the Army had overlooked a possible opportunity to save money. So the Army in 1971 belatedly agreed to conduct comparative tests of both the GM and Kaiser trucks under identical conditions at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds.

A grueling, 30,000-mile test proved what the Army experts had already concluded. Although the initial cost of the Kaiser truck was slightly lower, the GM truck not only was sturdier but cost far less to maintain.

The tests results stated, for example, that the GM truck went more than twice as far between mechanical failures than the Kaiser model. One Army expert called the GM vehicle "the best truck of this type I've ever seen."

Another Army analyst, who rode in both trucks, said at the test's conclusion that the GM model was in "top condition" but the Kaiser model was "literally falling apart." The Army experts agreed emphatically that GM had the better truck.

Thus vindicated, the Army might have been expected to go ahead with the procurement. But this was too logical for the military mind. Instead, the Army inexplicably cancelled the GM contract in May, 1971.

This was no simple matter, since GM had already geared up for production. GM demanded and received $12.9 million for disassembling the production line.

Another $12.4 million, which had already been invested in research and development, also went down the Pentagon drain. The GM cancellation, in other words, cost the taxpayers a painful $25.3 million.

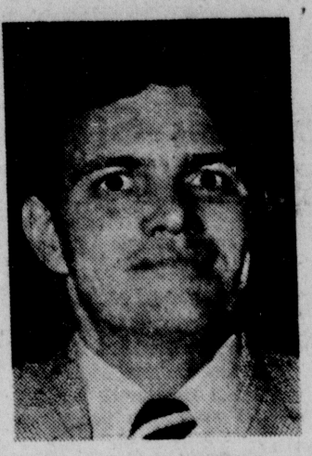

For this substantial sum, the Army received 27 prototype trucks, a set of blueprints and some special tools of no use except for assembling the truck that wasn't.

Thus, the Army effort to produce "more truck for the buck" wound up, instead, producing no trucks but costing a lot of bucks.

But this, unforunately, isn't the end of the story. The Army is now preparing to spend $145 million for 33,000 commercial trucks. These are little different than the trucks that the Army in 1967 insisted weren't adequate for rugged military duty.

Inflation, meanwhile, has sent costs soaring. So the Army must now pay about the same for the inferior trucks as it would have cost to produce the superior GM models.

Army experts have acknowledged to us privately that the commercial trucks will be woefully inadequate in the field.

Health nurse unit to meet

The Inland Center Occupational Health Nurses Association will hold its second meeting on Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, 1801 G St., Ontario.

The chapter was organized in September with 17 occupational health nurses attending the first meeting.

Temporary officers have been selected and meetings are planned on the third Wednesday of each month.

Any occupational health nurse interested in continuing educational requirements is invited to join. Information may be obtained by calling Pat Gough, 627-6181 or Marjorie Lambeth, 829-3531.

FMC, union okay 3-year agreement

A three-year contract between FMC Corp.'s Industrial Brush Operation in Pomona and the International Association of Machinists & Aerospace Workers, Local Lodge No. 590 has been ratified.

The agreement, approved by an 80 per cent majority vote, calls for average increases of 92 cents per hour over the 3-year period.

Other contract improvements include a new company-sponsored pension plan for retirement, scheduled to take effect immediately. Increases in employer contributions also include greater insurance coverage, improved bereavement and jury duty leaves.

Other benefits provide for the addition of five holidays over the three-year period, with all holidays now contiguous with weekends for longer, variable date holiday periods.

Commenting on the new contract, Irv Belinkoff, general manager of Industrial Brush Operation stated, "The ratification of this new contract is a tribute to the efforts of both management and the union working together to achieve mutual goals."

Industrial Brush Operation is part of FMC's Sweeper Division and is headquartered at 1250 E. Philadelphia St.

Chinoan gets 2nd nod for milk board

Floris Ykema of Chino has been nominated to succeed himself as a member of the state board of directors of the California Milk Advisory Board.

Ykema also serves as state board chairman. Nominated as alternate members were John Vander Schaaf and Pete Dykstra, both of Ontario.

Mrs. Vernon Stahl of Chino was nominated to serve on the board, succeeding Enos Mello of Chino. Alternate board member to Mrs. Stahl is John Schoneveld and reserve nominee is Arlen Van Leeuwen, both of Chino.

Nominations, made at the board's recent annual session, are subject to approval of the director of the California Department of Food and Agriculture.

If we're kept from doing our job, you could lose yours.

One of a series of reports by Harvey A. Proctor, Chairman, Southern California Gas Company.

The natural gas shortage has already started to take its toll.

We've had to cut back on supplies of natural gas to some of the large industries—those that can convert to other forms of energy.

And you've begun to be affected by the shortage whether you're aware of it or not.

The problems shortages are causing.

Because natural gas is the cheapest form of energy, those forced to convert to alternate fuels such as fuel oil are paying more for energy.

It costs them more to turn out their products.

That means they may have to pass on this increase to their customers in the form of higher prices.

Higher prices in a tight economy mean the consumer buys fewer goods and services.

So industries cut back on their work force.

And that means more unemployment.

In four years there could be real trouble.

The major natural gas supply projects we have been pursuing in northwest New Mexico, south and north Alaska, and Indonesia take considerable time to bring to a successful conclusion. But we're running out of time.

Each of these major projects requires dozens of time-consuming approvals from many governmental and regulatory bodies at local, state and federal levels.

If we don't get big new supplies of natural gas by 1979, we could find ourselves in a serious situation.

As we pointed out earlier, we're already cutting back on natural gas to industrial customers who can switch to other fuels. But in 1979 if we don't have new gas supplies, we will have to start cutting back on natural gas for shops and small businesses—many of which do not have the capability or the money to convert to other forms of energy. Even assuming such alternate energy sources will be available.

As a result, these businesses may have to reduce hours, perhaps even shut down completely for days, even weeks.

And there go jobs, lots of them.

Hundreds of thousands of jobs depend on natural gas.

Few people think about it, but southern California is to a great extent dependent on natural gas for its energy survival. Natural gas supplies more than half of our non-transportation energy.

That's why we're concerned when some people question the need for our plans to acquire additional gas supplies and build the facilities to get them here.

We're not asking for a blank check.

Nobody has the right to build facilities that threaten the health and welfare of neighbors.

Any facility we plan will conform to rigid safety and environmental standards.

It's not a blank check we're after.

Instead, we want your awareness of the kind of turmoil that could occur here without added gas supplies . . . and your cooperation as we go about finding solutions. That's why we are anxious to explain what we are doing about the natural gas shortage.

Because if we are kept from doing our job, you could lose yours.

For more information on the natural gas shortage, write: Southern California Gas Company, Box 54093, Los Angeles, California 90054.

Chaffey High class ready to use skills on house

Ground has been broken at 1536 Bonita Court in Ontario for a three-bedroom, 2,175-square-foot house to be constructed by the Chaffey High School building construction class.

Roger Dunlap, construction teacher, said a May 15 completion date has been established. When finished, the house will be put up for bidding by the district.

The house will have two and one-half baths, a formal dining room, a TV room, living room and kitchen. The stucco building will include a stucco and brick front with a 22-foot by 28-foot detached garage.

Over 100 Chaffey students will be involved in some way.

The plans for the house were designed by E. E. Sautter, a 1975 architectural student graduate. This year's architectural students, instructed by John List, will work as inspectors and will start plans for future projects. List's cabinet-making class will make the cabinets, counter tops and closets.

Students in Bill Shores' vocational welding class will build wrought-iron gates for the front and Seiran Stepanian's learning assistance group pupils will landscape the front-yard.

The business education students in the class of Delores Wilson will take care of the accounting aspect, including a ledger of expenditures.

The house will be the second built by Chaffey students who last year constructed one at 639 West F St., Ontario.

The cooperative venture includes the support of area businessmen including on the advisory committee: Bert Francis, Realtor; William Fredricks, electrical contractor; Donald Johnson, plumbing contractor; Dan Kinnoin, architect; Andrew List, engineer; Wayne Nelson, vice president of Hoyt Lumber Co.; Ed Schrooder, building inspector and Raymond R. Stark, general contractor.

WARREN GILLESPIE, son of Mr. and Mr. Wayland Gillespie Jr. of Upland, has attained the rank of Eagle Scout. A member of Boy Scout Troop 607, he earned 24 merit badges and completed an Eagle Scout service project. He was the first to receive an Eagle badge at Holcomb Valley Scout Reservation.

Claremont board to study plans for industrial site, condominiums

The first phase of a commercial-industrial complex on a 53-acre site bounded by Foothill and Claremont boulevards and Padua Avenue will be discussed at the Claremont Architectural Commission meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Barmakian-Norman and Associates has requested the architectural and site plan review of two industrial buildings covering 65,000 square feet fronting on the east side of Claremont Boulevard.

The applicant has submitted a master site plan, a Phase 1 site plan and exterior elevations. The southeast portion of the 53 acres is in the city of Upland.

The commission also will receive a request for an architectural and site plan review for a condominium complex at Seventh and Yale avenues.

The conditional use permit for the present proposal had been approved by the Claremont City Council Oct. 8, 1974 with respect to the siting and number of units.

The conditional use permit was extended by the Planning Commission July 29 for a six-month period, with an added condition that ground be broken within that period.

The Historical Claremont Neighborhood Association has been concerned about the development of the projects and had suggested that only mature landscaping be used.

In other matters, the commission will study a proposed change in a permanent sign for Griswold's Smorgasbord at 515 W. Foothill Blvd., an architectural and site plan for a three-story office building for Alton Sanford, a permanent sign for a proposed Greyhound Bus depot at the northeast corner of Indian Hill Boulevard and American Avenue, and a review of a proposed weekend art fair between the bus depot and the Rodeway tennis courts.

West End campaign hits 16%

The 1975 West End United Way campaign has reached $90,184 or 16 per cent of the $550,599 goal, according to the announcement made at the recent third kick-off luncheon of the campaign.

The luncheon was sponsored by the Chino Rotary Club at the Chino Community Building.

A highlight of the program was the announcement by Alice Pendleton of General Electric Aircraft Services Operations at the Ontario International Airport that G.E. employes have signed up for over $16,000 in payroll deductions so far. This exceeds the company's total for last year and the G.E. campaign is not yet completed, she said.

Richard Verrue, chairman of Division A, which represents employers with over 250 employes, announced that $48,458 of his division's goal of $284,367 has been collected.

Mrs. Sharon Adams, pilot campaign chairman, announced that $27,471 had been collected in her division, including $6,246 from companies participating in the United Way for the first time.

Mrs. Adams also said the Cucamonga Water District employes increased their contribution by 100 per cent, the Chino Basin Water District collected $1,910 in its first campaign and the Monte Vista Water District has already increased its pledge by 35 per cent over last year.

Other campaign division chairmen reporting were Joe Aldern, Division B, $15,590; Ken Wright, Division C, $6,604; Don Wight, Division D, $9,345; George Ehrnman, Professional Division, $150; and Rosalie Kamansky, Division G, $8,727.

Walnut club will serve breakfast

The Walnut Valley Kiwanis Club will host its eighth annual pancake breakfast Saturday at the Rowland Plaza Shopping Center.

The menu will include eggs, sausage, coffee, milk, juice and pancakes. Cost will be $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

All proceeds will be used to support youth projects.

The breakfast will coincide with Rowland Heights' annual Buckboard Days.

During the 8 a.m. to noon serving hours, the Buckboard Days fair will be staged at the same location. A community parade, being planned by the Rowland Heights Women's Club, will pass the location at 10:30 a.m.

The Kiwanis Club will provide first, second and third place trophies for winning parade entries.

S.D. view clear on secession from county: no!

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The San Dimas City Council unanimously went on record Monday night in opposition to any secession from Los Angeles County or formation of a professionally staffed association of San Gabriel Valley cities.

Mayor Jim Lough, who attended the recent meeting of 28 valley cities for discussion of forming either a separate county or another formal city association, began with statements against either action. He circulated copies of the by-laws for the association and paraphrased statements from representatives of other cities.

"It's a monumental task to even try to absorb county services into another county," said Lough. "It's mainly a matter of frustration because the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors is not responding to our needs. I think we should do for ourselves sometime without always asking the county, state or federal governments to do for us. Charity begins at home."

The mayor pointed out that just the cost of a feasibility study to investigate the advantages and disadvantages of a new county would be exhorbitant. He believed another level of government and meetings was not necessary and that the tentative dues of six cents per capita for each city could "mushroom into a tremendous amount of money."

"We should approach this whole situation very cautiously. Secession is complicated and costly," said Lough.

Lough solicited the opinions of his colleagues in order to make the position of San Dimas officials clear at the next meeting of the cities on Nov. 13.

Councilman James McLean reported that in terms of legality, time and money, the "gamble might not be worth what we would gain." Although Lough hinted at favoring a loose organization of elected officials discussing mutual problems and solutions to those problems, McLean said there are sufficient organizations already in existence to satisfy that need.

Councilman Keith Brogan failed to see the merit of either proposals, labeling them "duplication of effort" with "staggering costs." Councilman Ray Miracle asked "What happens to the contract cities such as San Dimas who contract for such services as fire and police?"

Miracle noted that the Independent Cities Association, Southern California Association of Governments and the League of California Cities all now perform the functions proposed for the new county and association.

Councilman Marvin Ersher stated that the "impetus for a new county is wrong." If so many regions within Los Angeles County are dissatisfied with county service, then the practical approach is charter reform, said Ersher. He also suggested "diffuse the power among more people" and expand the Board of Supervisors to assure better representation from areas not within the Los Angeles core.

Call for renewed wage talks goes unheeded

McVittie bill

Now, you can fight traffic case in 1 day

Motorists accused of traffic violations but who want to plead innocent will be able to have their arraignment and trial the same day as the result of a bill authored by Assemblyman Bill McVittie D-65th Dist. and signed recently by Gov. Edmund Brown.

The bill (AB 767) requires court clerks to schedule traffic court arraignments and trials for the same day for those motorists who wish to plead innocent. An accused person could obtain a hearing date by mailing a letter explaining his intention to plead innocent. Appropriate bail must accompany the letter.

McVittie said the new law, which will go into effect Jan. 1, will end the current situation in which a motorist must appear once in court to plead innocent and again for his trial.

"Missing two days' work often is more expensive than paying the fine, so many persons have been pleading guilty when they really believe the citations were unjustified," McVittie said.

Pomona says union issue still unclear

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

The suspension of wage negotiations between the city and Pomona City Employes Association remained in effect Monday night despite an appeal by the employes' representative to return to the bargaining table.

John Adams, chief negotiator for the association, asked the Pomona City Council to instruct its representatives to resume the meet-and-confer process suspended last Friday.

Following a closed-door executive session of the council, however, City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said the suspension would remain in effect for the time being.

The city, said Gonce, must first learn whether it is dealing with its employes or Local 660 of the Service Employes International Union, AFL-CIO, which more than 300 of the 400 association members have joined.

When the salary talks were suspended by the city's chief negotiator, David Miller, on Friday, Miller charged many of the demands by the association involved recognition of the union, and that therefore the city was bargaining on new ground with a union instead of its employes' association.

Adams, however, argued with that contention Monday, stating it was the city that broke new ground Friday in making a two-year proposal, and that the employes had done nothing more than offer a counter-proposal.

"A suspension of negotiations is no way to bring about an agreement. It is a dangerous state of affairs," said Adams, although he did not threaten any strike action.

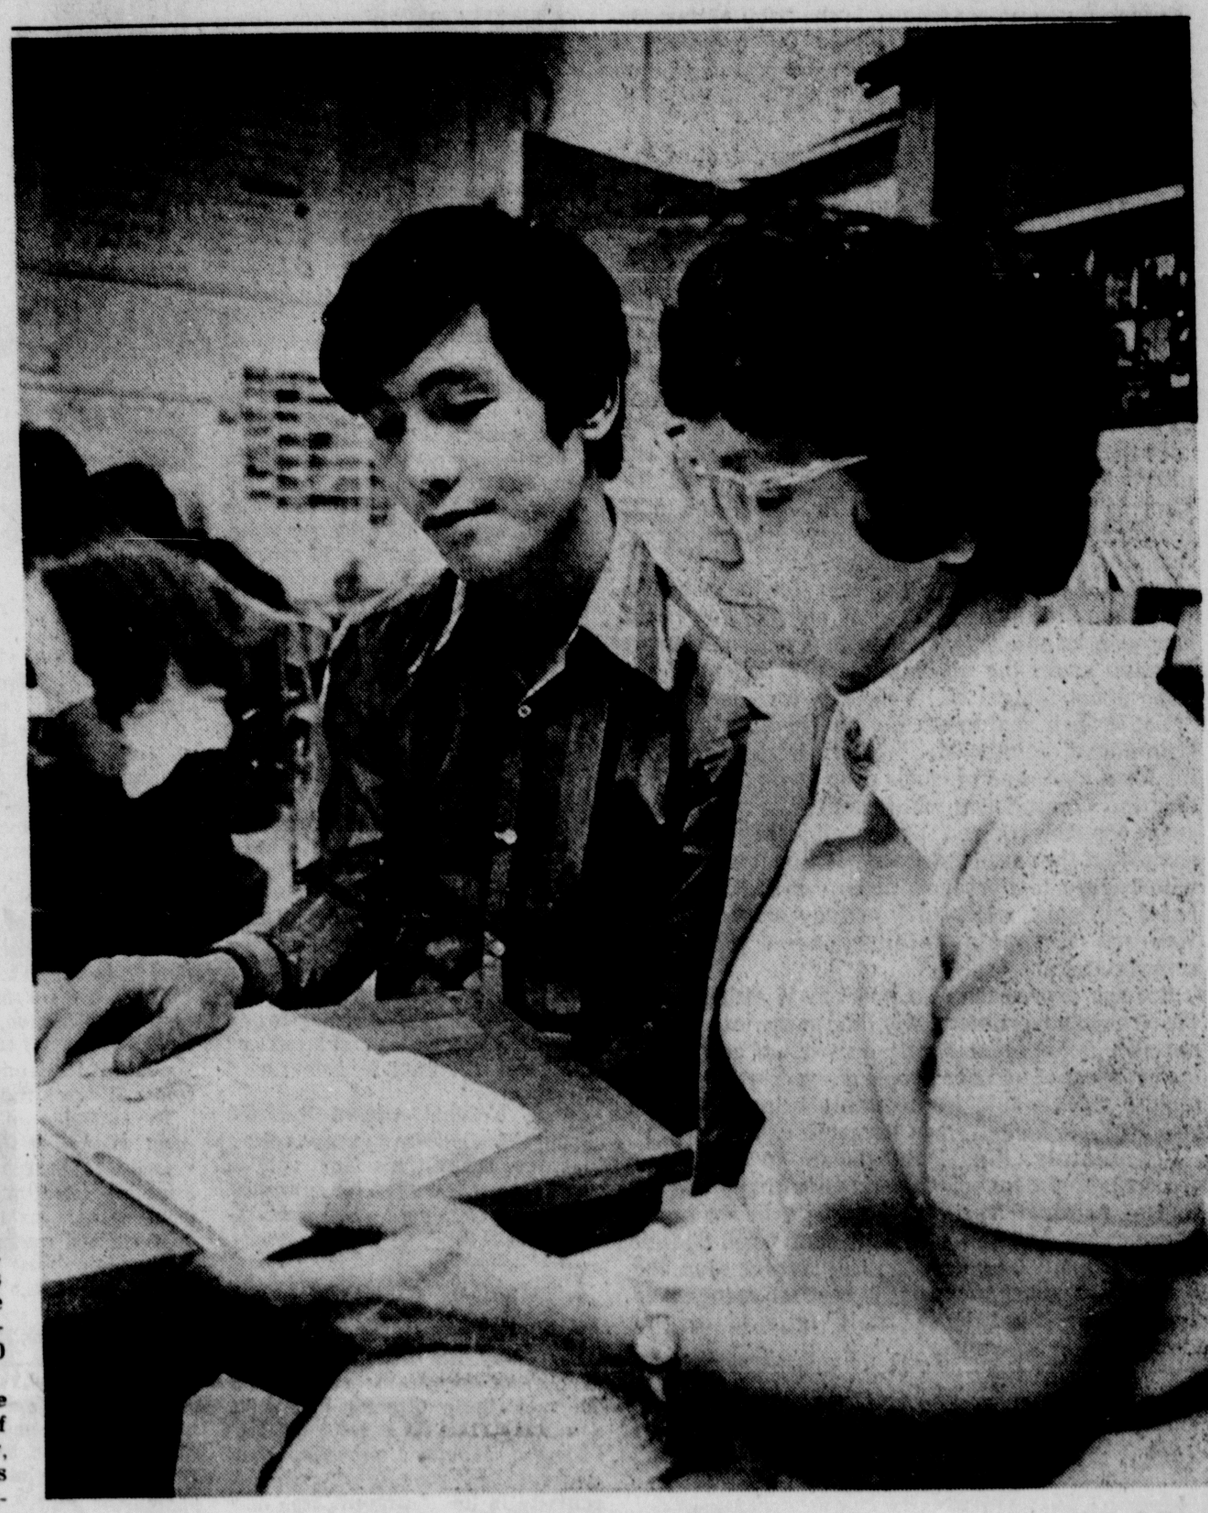

Councilman Adrian Wright was the only member of the council to comment on the salary dispute, stating the council itself should do the bargaining with employes instead of turning that responsibility over to Miller.

When the talks broke off, the city had made a salary offer of five per cent retroactive to July 1, and six per cent effective July 1, 1976. The offer also included an additional holiday (which would mean a six-hour increase in holiday time for employes since the two-hour Good Friday holiday can no longer be observed due to a court ruling), and optional health and deferred compensation plans.

The employes had proposed a five per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1, a 2.5 per cent increase effective Jan. 1, 1976, and an increase on Sept. 1, 1976 equal to the rise of the consumer price index for Los Angeles during the previous 12 months.

The association's proposal also included a number of other items, including a "no layoff" clause.

In other business Monday night, the council approved an ambulance rate increase as requested by Cole-Schafer Ambulance, which exclusively serves the city. The increase, from $35 to $40 per call plus other service increases, brings the city rate into conformance with the rates set in the unincorporated areas of the county by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

School bus mishap kills Glendora boy

A 7-year-old emotionally handicapped child was run over and killed by a school bus the victim had just alighted from in Glendora Monday, highway patrolmen reported.

The victim, Brett A. Bearman, 2348 Victoria Place, Glendora, suffered a crushed skull and chest and was pronounced dead at Glendora Community Hospital.

The accident occurred at Bidwell Elementary School, 330 Sellers Ave., shortly after 1 p.m. The victim had just gotten off the bus with several other youngsters.

Highway patrolmen gave this account:

The driver, Carolyn Mary Ellis, 22, of 339 Victoria Place, Claremont, lost sight of the victim after he and the others left the bus and he apparently was at the right-front of the vehicle as she began to drive away. She heard a "thump" as the bus started forward but thought it was a mechanical failure of some sort. She pulled forward again, heard a second thump and a child's scream and stopped. The child had been run over twice.

The driver was not cited and highway patrolmen, whose assignment it is to investigate all school bus accidents, said the investigation was continuing. They said the bus contained other emotionally handicapped youngsters.

Funeral service scheduled for Ontario traffic victim

Rosary for Guellermo De Lariva, 27, of 633 W. Sunkist St., Ontario, killed early Saturday morning when a car struck a utility pole in the 600 block of E. California St. in Ontario, will be recited today at 8 p.m. at Draper Chapel.

Mr. De Lariva, according to Ontario police, was fatally injured when his car left the street and crashed into a utility pole. Also injured in the accident was Josephine Garcia Mijares, 37, of 816 E. Belmont St., Ontario. Mrs. Mijares was listed in good condition today at San Antonio Community Hospital.

Mr. De Lariva, a West End resident for 11 years, is survived by his wife, Petra, a son Juan, and two daughters Julia and Cynthia all at home; his parents, Juan De Lariva of San Jose and Mrs. Elena Martinez of Ontario; nine brothers, Juan, Salvador, John and Carl of San Jose; Thomas of Texas; Jose Barba of El Paso, Tex.; Ramon, Tony, and Carlos Martinez, all of Ontario; and four sisters, Carol, Deliah, and Sara De Lariva, all of San Jose, and Martha Martinez of Ontario.

Mass will be conducted at 9 a.m. Wednesday at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Ontario, with interment to follow at Bellevue Cemetery in Ontario.

English class, like a little U.N., having boom in Chino

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Students from 27 foreign countries are finding out the English language isn't that hard to learn in Chino.

A mushrooming number of students are flocking to Mrs. Alleane Pentecost's English as a Second Language class (ESL) in the Chino Adult School — and a remarkable percentage have learned enough to make their way in chosen professions.

District officials have enjoyed such a strong response to the program that they are seeking new federal funding for a plan to combine vocational training with ESL.

Al Dyke, vocational education supervisor, says he hopes to obtain enough funds to add 200 students to the program which has a current enrollment of 350. San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino will be pushing for the combined program at a Wednesday meeting of the California Manpower Services Council in Ontario.

Students would learn vocational skills while studying English, said Dyke. That way, once they complete the courses, they would be better equipped to find jobs.

For what Mrs. Pentecost terms an "open-ended" class, students are really anxious to learn. "They sign in and sign out," she says. "They fit the course to their own schedule. You have persons coming for an hour, and others seven hours a day."

Students arrive from Vietnam, Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Iran, Turkey, Yugoslavia, France, Spain, the Azores, Portugal, Kenya, Zaire, Jordan, Syria, Israel, Mexico, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras, El Salvador, Venezuela, Colombia, Brazil, Peru, Uruguay and Argentina.

Dyke says there's even a student from Cucamonga, "which some people think is a foreign country."

They begin with the alphabet, if they speak absolutely no English, Mrs. Pentecost explains. But they progress rapidly to various books which team them words and sounds. Audio tutoring machines are utilized for the repeating of words.

"I find out where they are, and where they want to be," said Mrs. Pentecost. "If they know the alphabet, they start at a higher level."

Her class is taught five days and four nights a week, a possible 47 hours of learning for the industrious student. All educational offerings through ESL are provided by state and federal funds.

Mrs. Pentecost has headed her class for eight years, and is now being assisted by her husband, Robert. She works hard with students on speaking, reading, writing and comprehension. "A person needs them all to function in our society."

Her students, she says, are learning "the whole ball of wax."

All-year school

Chino's year-round school controversy, which as divided district residents for several years, is back on the agenda tonight.

The school board, at its 7 p.m. meeting, is scheduled to consider whether to call for an election for March 2, 1976.

Crash injures battalion chief

A Los Angeles County battalion fire chief was hurt slightly when his car, en route to a grass fire with siren and red light on, collided with another car Sunday afternoon at Golden Springs Drive and Grand Avenue, Diamond Bar area.

Chief Hubert Lynch, 52, of Dana Point, told highway patrol officers he was going through the intersection against the red light when a car driven by William C. Lidyer, 46, of 19353 E. Abert St., Rowland Heights, entered the intersection. Both drivers hit their brakes but were unable to avoid the collision.

Lidyer told officers he did not see the emergency vehicle approaching. He was not injured. Lynch complained of a sore neck but did not require hospitalization.

Story in error on station owner

The owner of the Arco Service station at Central Avenue and Mission Boulevard in Montclair, site of a $3,700 safe burglary early Monday morning, was incorrectly identified in a spotlight on area crime story appearing Monday in the Progress Bulletin.

The owner of the service station is Jon Sulieman, not A.A. Patterson as reported. Patterson sold the service station about 10 months ago. The West End Sheriff's department originally identified the station as Patterson's, as it was known for nearly 22 years, but later corrected the identification.

Chino police job narrows to two

An Orange County police chief and a lieutenant from the Riverside County Sheriff's Department are the top candidates to become the new Chino police chief, according to reliable sources.

Alfred J. Cracolici, chief of Stanton's police force for the past five years, is one of two men who could be named tonight to head Chino's 45-man force, sources said Monday.

The name of the Riverside lieutenant was unavailable.

A third candidate, the police chief of a small town near Fresno, has been eliminated from consideration, the sources indicated.

Capt. Louis Moreno, Chino's acting chief, and Capt. Tony Linza were dropped from the list of 47 original applicants "some time ago," it was learned.

According to the same sources, City Manager Bob Fast definitely will offer his choice for police chief to the City Council at tonight's executive session at 7:30. He has the power to "hire and fire," but the council will be doing some "counseling" on the selection.

Chino has been operating without a permanent chief since June 30 when Frank Meehan left to take the police chief's job at Redondo Beach.

Perspective on Spain

The curious double standard the democracies of Europe for some reason are in the habit of employing when it comes to judging the behavior of socialist and non-socialist governments has seldom been as glaringly obvious as it has in the case of Spain of late.

The execution by the Franco government of five convicted terrorists, despite appeals for mercy from everybody from the Pope to prime ministers and presidents, set off a wage of outrage throughout Europe. Diplomats were called home, economic sanctions were threatened.

What barbarism against those whose only crime has been to blow up, shoot and otherwise dispatch more than 50 policemen and civilians in Spain so far this year. The only people outraged by the murders themselves seem to the the Spaniards.

Francisco Franco, of course, is an old fool who either believes the Almighty has suspended the laws of nature on his behalf or is too senile to realize that he is providing history with another example of "after me, the deluge."

Tyrant that me may be, however, for the ordinary Spaniard, life under Franco at his most despotic has been infinitely freer than that of the ordinary Russian under the absolute totalitarianism of the Communist system at its most benevolent.

Yet in their zeal to see Europe rid of its last non-Communist dictatorship, Western leaders are calling for a visitation of chaos upon Spain from which only the Communists will benefit.

As for the United States, it finds itself in somewhat the same awkward position it has been in with regard to Portugal. Leases on U.S. military bases in Spain, which may or may not be vital to Western Europe's defense, have just been renegotiated.

But any expression of support by Washington for the Franco government, whether in the interests of our own global security or purely out of concern at the prospect of another people going down the Communist tube, would immediately bring down the wrath of our home-grown humanitarians.

Fortunately, the Portuguese so far have demonstrated a tenacious determination to win the kind of political freedom they have never really known. Thus one can still hope that when Spain's time of transition comes, and it is coming soon, the Spanish will also know what is best for themselves despite the "help" of their friends in the democracies.

A good idea, but...

The history of warfare, up until the nuclear era anyway, offers an abundance of examples of how every innovation in offensive weaponry has eventually been countered by a development in defensive weaponry, and vice versa.

The same things is true of the war against crime. A case in point is a nifty little item called the "Taser Public Defender" which its maker, Taser System of Los Angeles, calls a nonlethal crime prevention device for stopping attackers. Looking something like a flashlight, the device launches two small darts attached to batteries by 18-foot wires. The darts can penetrate 1.5 inches of clothing and deliver a 50,000-volt jolt that is exceedingly paintful and incapacitating but not deadly. Or so the campany says in its literature.

As might have been predicted, however, in the first "wartime" use of the Taser Public Defender that has come to our attention, a young woman and her male companion walked into a gas station in Miami where the woman smilingly zapped the attendant with the electronic dart gun and then helped her accomplice clean out the cash register. The attendant, who true to the company's promise was not killed, described it as "the worst pain I ever felt."

To make the story complete, the Taser Public Defender was stolen from an office in Miami. In fact, it was one of eight stolen — and not by anybody interested in defending the public, you may be sure.

Thoughts

O great and mighty God whose name is the Lord of hosts, whose eyes are open to all the ways of men, rewarding every man according to his ways and according to the fruit of his doings. — Jeremiah 32:19.

"Life is like a cash register, in that every account, every thought, every deed, like every sale, is registered and recorded." — Bishop Fulton Sheen.

Draw near to God and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you men of double mind. — James 4:8.

"Better keep yourself clean and bright: you are the window through which you must see the world." — George Bernard Shaw, British playwright.

Just in jest

I suppose I am just a nuisance in search of an excuse — any old kind of an excuse that will allow me to inflict on you a lot of sound and fury signifying little or nothing. After all, what benefit can you possibly derive from being told there are 63,360 inches in a mile, or that there are 31,173 verses in the Bible? But now you know whether or no! And I feel better just because I told you. For I experience a sadistic delight in taking non-essential facts and making them sound as important as though they came direct from a mountain top revelation — or, better yet, even as profound as some of the pearls of wisdom uttered by Howard Cosell.

So now, having fittingly disposed of the facts and figures, we come logically to the philosophic portion of this discussion. —If, as many of our better minds contend, it is proper to legalize some of the things two consenting adults do in private, what is the legal status of the private acts of one consenting adult? —Deciding that one should keep you busy for another hour or two at least; and since I have now put down on paper approximately 200 words, it gets me off the hook for another day.

Positive suggestions

Dear Editor:

For every person who took the time and trouble to write about your editorial, there must be three or four who agree with the majority of letters. I have read at least 70 per cent of the letters. I do not recall any positive suggestion. I apologize if I have missed one or two.

I would like to suggest the following campaign: Support your local merchants and businesses. I would even go further and propose a boycott of out of town business.

There are at least three advantages to this policy:

1. More taxes for Pomona and more money to pay for protection.
2. More local income and more employment.
3. Discourage emigration of local business.

Pomona has much service and business to offer. Perhaps a few weeks of listing local businesses as a free service or at least at a reduced rate would stimulate some local civic spirit.

Also, I would suggest that the Progress Bulletin would solicit positive suggestions and publish them, not as letters to the editor but in a special column. — F. Stuart Ryerson, M.D.

A puppet council

Dear Editor:

Last May the Pomona city administrator forced the removal of the motorcycle officers from the downtown area. In a letter to the Progress Bulletin I protested that removal and warned of criminal acitivity in the downtown area and the protection which the motor officers provided.

In spite of my warning, the officers were removed and now a woman is dead, slain by a daylight criminal exactly as predicted. And, as further predicted in my letter, shoppers are afraid to shop downtown Pomona.

While the mayor tells the chamber of commerce how much the city revenues have increased, the city administrator states that the police department must be further cut because the city is in financial trouble. Who is lying?

Through bad faith negotiation with the city employes, an impasse was reached which forced the employes to inform the public of the shameful condition through a newspaper advertisement.

This action was countered by gross lies on the part of the city administrator who then took off on a trip to Mexico, leaving the impasse further impacted.

The city has demonstrated only bad faith in their employe relations. Employes who blow the whistle on dishonesty in government are summarily and vindictively dismissed. Others are harassed and threatened in an effort to perpetuate the government of the city by fear.

I am not the only person who knows of the attitudes in our city government. I'm just the only one who happens to be talking about it.

The word of our city officials is worth nothing. They long ago forfeited their public trust. They long ago forfeited their public trust. The greatest force for continued depression in this city is the city administrator and his puppet city council. — C.L. Bryant, former councilman

Need new leadership

Dear Editor:

Although we live in changing times we are part of one of the greatest countries in the world. A country with a glorious heritage, a heritage etched in courage and dedication and sacrifice.

Ever since Paul Revere shouted "the British are coming," millions of people have died and countless others have sacrificed and dedicated their lives to preserve our freedom. The price that our forefathers paid for our freedom rests on our shoulders. Each generation passes on to the following generation the responsibility to preserve this freedom. Each and every one of us must share in this responsibility.

What's happening in Pomona today is a cross section of what is happening in America. The vast silent majority has been silent too long. It takes more than voicing an opinion or just to stand up and be counted; it takes involvement. Remember the words of Abraham Lincoln "a government of the people, by the people and for the people."

We have all been critical of the government and the police over such issues as crime, corruption and generally what's wrong with America today. We must all share in this responsibility because the attitudes of hate, violence and indifference are spawned in our homes and our local communities. The greatest resource a country can have is people, people not measured in number but measured in dedication, determination and character.

Downtown Pomona has become a ghost town and many of the residents have indicated a desire to move. But where do we move so that some day we won't be faced with the same problem? The time has come to face the problem and solve it so that Pomona can set an example for the rest of the nation. It can be done. Over the years I have seen Pomona succumb to leadership that has failed to reach the people.

The attitude of the community must change before business will return to this area. We must find a common denominator between ourselves and set a common goal: a goal wherein we can live peacefully in harmony with understanding through open and honest communication. Take part in the City Council meetings. Demand innovative action now. Pomona needs new and vibrant leadership.

We need people in public office who can unite people through leadership, inspiration and the ability to reach all levels of our society with open and honest communication. Each generation produces such people. Seek them out and put them in public office and support them. Don't let an election go by without a 100% turn out. Every vote does count. Get involved in every local level. Remember that discipline and an unceasing effort is necessary to preserve our freedom.

Franklin Roosevelt remarked during the day of the depression, "it is not enough to clothe and feed the body of this nation for there is also the spirit, and of the three the greatest is spirit."

The biggest threat to losing our freedom is ouselves. — W.A. Kozlovich, Claremont

Good buys in Pomona

Dear Editor:

Not too long ago I read an article in your newspaper about problem Pomona and the front page emphasis on the bad side of the city. True I agree that Pomona is a neat place and absolutely worth savir . . I agree something should be done and I agree that all is not lost.

For the past twenty years I have owned property in Pomona and I still do. Thru these years I have reroofed, repainted, resurfaced a driveway, gardened and spent money making these properties top shape. Wouldn't it be great if we could rejuvenate the beautification committee and give prizes to the different categories of home improvements. As the broker of a Pomona as well as Claremont firm, I will personally contribute $50 to initiate the project toward the prize monies.

How about a paint our neighborhood drive and have people help each other and make it a fun project. And neighborhood gardening or whatever.

When we heard the Vietnamese had first come to town, we were up there with food, furniture, clothes and whatever we could round up on two trucks just to welcome these newcomers. Even got the father of a family a job as an airplane mechanic. Heard people complaining of the new arrivals. I fell it's just like our forefathers coming. They're joining our melting pot and have as much right to our wonderful country as we here now do.

Checking into bolt locks which will make homes safer for Pomona occupants. We are now making arrangements to get them installed in homes at discount prices. If the locksmith arranges to go to six homes in one neighborhood in advance he can accomplish the installations in a much shorter time and for a much more reasonable price. Wouldn't this be a great project for some organization??

Selling homes in Pomona is better then it ever was. Listings are moving and prices are equalizing. I cannot agree that Pomona is a lost cuase and I do agree that all we need are some positive thinking shots and some incentive pills.

Let's not give up the ship but do some constructive thinking. Chin up. — Florence Cohn, Claremont

Pomona has values galore

Talk about crime, we've lived in Pomona for fifteen years and have our home with a "For Sale" sign on it! Why? We just stole a beautiful home with everything imaginable (also located in Pomona).

WAKE UP citizens of every community . . . I laugh when people tell me about our city—it isn't only Pomona, it's everywhere! You folks can keep running, because you'll be a fugitive for the rest of your lives not to mention the trauma your children must be going through.

Do you think children in Upland, Alta Loma or other cities turn out better than children in Pomona? You're wrong, my children are learning more than just reading, writing and math; they're learning how to get along with society, our society—all different types of races, all different classes of people. They will be more prepared when put to the test of coping as an adult.

Don't think crime hasn't happened to us, we had our home broken into but so has our sister in Ontario, a friend in Ontario, another friend twice in Cucamonga, some in Chino, Upland, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, you name the city and they have crime.

You law abiding people continue running from Pomona, but look-out surrounding communities because when they move into your city and an incident arises . . . watch the "For Sale" signs and watch the deterioration of your city. It's already happened in mine and now there are values galore—watch Pomona move on up! — Mr. & Mrs. D. Waechter

A good standard

Dear Editor:

Congratulations on your issue of October 8. Your lead story is a news beat about "World's Fair for Ontario," done by your own writer, Joseph H. Firman. The mix of stories on page one is good, with local, national, and international news. Page 2 has a good spread of news items, all written by your own staff except for one AP story. You deal with city wage deadlock, Pomona plans for housing for senior citizens, Health Center immunizations without charge, with a good photo with human interest. There is a local story on grants to the colleges.

Turning to your second section, all stories on the first page are done by your own capable writers. Vonne Robertson writes about the local visit of nationally famous Margaret Mead, anthropologist, with her predictions on the future. Jon Morris writes about traffic problems in Chino. Jack Burson gives a good in-depth report of a local Superior Court murder trial. There is a story of local Viet refugee aid programs, and a lively report on a "hillside" law discussion in the La Verne city council. And Phyllis Cannon reports in depth on Pomona School Board discussions and vote on smoking at schools; Jeanne Hemenover gives a similar report on Bonita.

When a newspaper does a good job, it gives the valley a sense of community; a sense of knowing what is happening. If a paper relies on police blotter and wire service "filler" stories, communication of local knowledge breaks down. Emphasis on crime as news may even increase crime; emphasis on positive factors, with good reporting on valley items, encourages understanding, and citizen participation, and helps eliminate the kind of isolation that encourages crime. Your October 8 issue did not carry a single crime story in its first two pages. In this, and in its use of local-in-depth reporting, the paper set itself a good standard of performance. Keep it up! — Stephen Zetterberg, Claremont

Paul Harvey
Unions overrun their headlights

Suppose your business were shut down by a union dispute which had nothing whatever to do with your business. Whatever your business, you should not be squeezed between the jaws of somebody else's union-management squabble. That is why the Supreme Court decreed secondary boycotts are illegal.

A secondary boycott in the construction industry, for example, might mean that one picket could shut down the entire Alaska Pipeline Project.

Until we had laws against secondary boycotts, an isolated local-level dispute with some supplier over the length of somebody's coffee break might have paralyzed our nation's entire space program.

So now we have laws against secondary boycotts but — there is a sneaky effort in the Congress right now — Senate Bill 1479 — to allow secondary boycotts in the construction industry.

It's time for some top-sergeant talk about union "responsibility." Detroit's United Auto Workers union leaders outsmarted themselves. In demanding ever-higher wages they drove 20% of America's car buyers overseas. The auto workers' union leaders did not suffer for it. Auto workers did.

Similarly in the construction trades, union leaders have overrun their headlights. The average construction worker in American cities of over 100,000 population does very well for himself — when he's working. In wages and fringes he makes more than $10 an hour. This past year his wage rate increased another 9.2%.

The average construction worker makes 86% more than the average worker in manufactuing — when he's working. But in recent years his unions' shortsighted greed has all but killed off single-family housing in this country, driving more and more Americans into mass-produced, multifamily, compartmentalized cracker boxes and mobile homes.

Yet Labor Day the leaders of five unions went on TV — not to applaud our highest standard of living in the world, not to celebrate the fact that in every other nation on planet earth workers work more hours to pay for food, clothing and rent; but instead, these myopic labor leaders announced they are going to demand big new wage increases for their members.

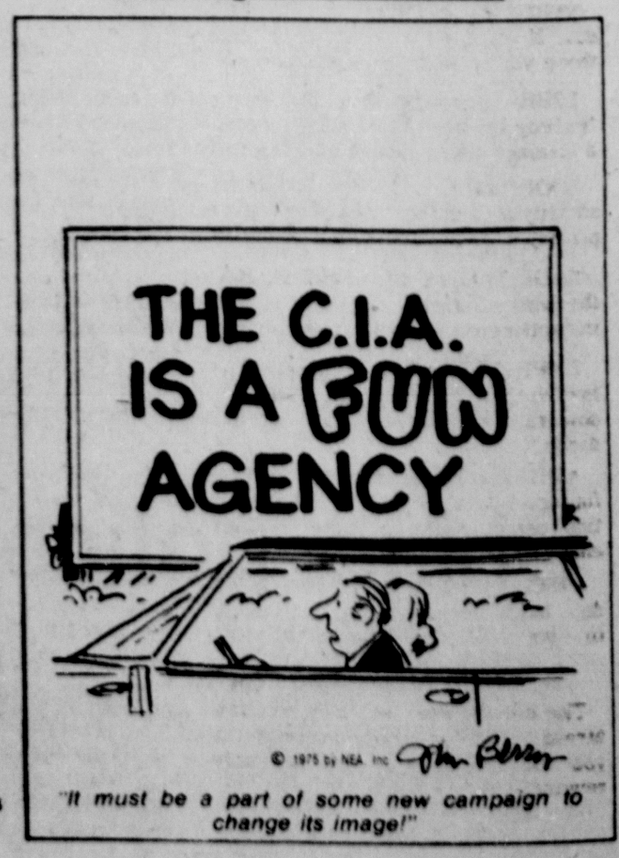

Construction union leaders are seeking special-privilege legislation which this election year Congress just might approve. The House half of Congress already has — 20 to 178!

Few union leaders are sufficiently secure so that they dare let a union election go by without having produced a fatter contract for the membership. A lot of union members, on the other hand, recognizing their responsibility for the construction recession (including houses and oil refineries), have volunteered to accept less pay than is called for in their contracts.

The construction worker should oppose Senate Bill 1479 if only because he is now spening 20% of his time unemployed; he can ill afford to spend another 50% of his time idled by somebody else's strike.

And because our nation cannot afford it; that deserves his consideration, too.

Canine needs own canteen

DEAR DR. MILLER: When you're hiking with your dog and don't want to pack water for him, but are not sure that the water he might drink might be polluted, is it all right to use something like iodine tablets to sterilize the water? I usually pack a canteen for myself, but Geronimo would drain it in two seconds. — E. K.

DEAR E.K.: There are two major problems with producing potable water for your pooch from possibly polluted sources. For one thing, Geronimo simply wouldn't appreciate the taste of iodine-sterilized water. He's undoubtedly had to learn to accept cholorinated drinking water, but he wouldn't be likely to accept the iodine version. Besides, Geronimo would likely find the questionable water source before you did, and odds are he wouldn't wait around for you and your iodine tablets before consuming as much as he wanted.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Snowball's a real sun worshipper and has spent most of the summer in the sun whenever she can find it. Her ears began to get redder than usual and peel some. I was told it was sunburn, but I thought she'd get used to it. But she hasn't. The ears are getting worse instead of better, and now the edges are all cracked and bleeding. I'd have thought she could have healed it herself, but I guess she'll need help. What would be the best sunburn lotion for a white cat's ears where they're already quite bad-looking? I didn't realize how bad until someone else made me really look at them. — M.O.

DEAR M.O.: Snowball and sunshine don't mix, or shouldn't. White cats are more susceptible to some forms of cancer than other cats and, in particular, to skin cancer related to chronic irritation of the skin cells from the sun. For this reason, even though they may be passionate sun worshippers if given a chance, white cats shouldn't be. Their exposure to direct sun rays should be strictly limited. Snowball needs help, undoubtedly, and more, I'm afraid, than sunburn lotions can offer. Her doctor may even advise surgical removal of the ear flaps, since it's quite possible cancer cells are already present along the edges. In any event, have her checked immediately.

DEAR DR. MILLER: How do you tell when a dog sneezes a lot whether he has an allergy or something up his nose? — T.W.

DEAR T.W.: Sometimes sniffing out the right answer is extremely difficult perhaps requiring an anesthetic and even, occasionally, x-rays.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Wednesday, Oct. 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Despite your desire to keep to yourself today, you will become overly involved with people. Things won't work out the way you hoped they would.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have far too many activities today. Too many people are concerned in them. You'll please some, but others will be disappointed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you'll leave a host of details go till the last minute. Some important things will be neglected. Hopefully, you'll learn a lesson.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll try to be like a chameleon today and adapt to the whims of the crowd you're with. Things won't turn out all that well for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you start something today stick with it, or business and personal affairs will get so complicated you'll be chasing your own tail.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're far too indecisive today. If you don't make up your mind, you'll not only bug those you're with, but even yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Slow down a bit today. Nothing you have to do is that urgent that you have to put a strain on your nerves of disturb your peace of mind.

More on physician-patient flap

Dear Miss Landers: As a physician, may I comment on my colleague who blew his stack when his patient deducted $1.50 from her bill because she had to wait well beyond her appointment time? How often does this happen? If it occurs rarely, or if the wait is a short one, she should overlook it.

If it happens frequently you can bet he has no interest in the patient or her medical problems. He is deliberately overscheduling to keep the bucks rolling in. My advice is for her to find another doctor, not merely to save needless waiting time, but more importantly to make certain she is getting proper attention. Unfortunately, physicians who overschedule also tend to undertreat.

Except for emergencies, even the most successful specialists can keep their appointments if they are conscientious. Every good physician will confirm this. — A Westchester Physician

Dear Westy: I checked with three good physicians and they agreed. Read on, for a new angle.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about that flap between the physician and the patient who was kept waiting for 2½ hours.

I'm surprised no one called your attention to the fact that it is not the physician who schedulres the patients, it's his nurse or desk woman.

I went to a doctor who always ran two or three hours late. It drove me crazy. When I heard his nurse schedule three people for the same time I got smart and changed doctors. That was 10 years ago and I've never had to wait for more than 10 or 15 minutes since.

A few times the nurse has come to the waiting room to tell us the doctor was called out on an emergency. She offered to reschedule those who didn't care to wait. This certainly beats sitting around for two hours wondering what in the world is going on.

I hope I have shed a little light on the subject. — Mrs. K.

Dear Mrs. K.: So do I. Thanks for lifting the shade.

Dear Ann Landers: Somebody out there needs straightening around. Please be the intermediary. I refer to the uncle whose six-year-old nephew disrupts his class, is mean to the other students, irritates his teacher and makes a general nuisance of himself. The question was, "Can he be expelled from school?"

The answer is NO. In the United States no six-year-old can be kicked out of school. He can, however, be placed in a class where there is help for him. I know because I teach emotionally disturbed children.

Parents and children have rights to education in this country. Most states guarantee a child an education until he is 18. Even if he strikes a teacher, a disturbed student can be forced to go for help, along with his parents if necessary, or be put in a special class.

That uncle ought to go to the principal of the boy's school and demand that the child's rights be respected. If he gets no satisfaction he should go to the head of the board of education. Even the emotionally disturbed are entitled to a break. — In The Know

Dear In: You were one of many who wrote to make this clear and I thank you. I was so busy sympathizing with the boy that I failed to zero in on the central issue.

Hat was cheap—only $112

In cleaning out one of the boys' closets the other day I was knocked senseless by a coconut with an Indian face painted on it.

This was followed by an avalanche which included an alligator dressed up like a grand parade marshall, a human skull with a raven perched on top that said, "Have a Good Day," a snow and water paperweight showing the New York skyline in which the water had evaporated, a beer stein that played "White Christmas" when you lifted the lid, and a funky light that flickered on and off and said, "Lite Up Las Vegas."

As I sifted through the rest — backscratchers, totem poles, key rings and a blowfish (that brought me into my first contact with acupuncture) — I tried to imagine how many man hours went into acquiring, transporting, and maintaining all of these souvenirs. Then I saw it: the Robin Hood hat with a feather from the Ionia State Fair.

It was 10 years ago. The family was en route to a camping trip when we were attracted by the Ionia State Fair. As we started to leave the grounds, my son said, "Could I buy this hat where they sew your name on it?"

I shrugged, "Why not?" My husband said, "You don't need it."

I said it was only $1.39. My husband said it was logic like mine that drove the European nations into bankruptcy and besides the kid would forget about the dumb hat in 10 minutes.

The kid cried all night long keeping everyone awake.

I awoke the next morning with enough wrinkles to plant crops. The kids were surly and my husband had a flat tire. (I told him he'd be punished for his cheapness.)

Finally, he gave in and said, "Okay, we'll go back and get the hat."

The first officer cited us for an illegal left turn into the fairgrounds. The next officer at the gate said the fair wasn't open until noon and suggested we turn around and go out the same way we had come in. In turning the trailer, my husband scraped a tree that punctured our water tank in the trailer and eventually cost $53 to weld.

We were forced to go into a nearby trailer camp, pay the fees, wait until 11, pay admittance for the family to the grounds, have lunch and get the hat. The other kids complained that since he got the hat, they should get the cane with the bird on the end that chirped when you waved it around the car.

The $1.39 hat cost a total of $112.00. They misspelled his name.

Dr. Lamb

Read label to judge coffee

DEAR DR. LAMB — Since so many times coffee is eliminated from a person's diet for various reasons, please answer this. Is "acid neutralized" considered "decaffeinated?" Also, if a person is sold on brewed coffee, can't you put instant decaffeinated coffee into a coffee pot just as with regular ground, and perk it (using measurements on instant coffee labels)? I understand one can hardly tell the difference from fresh brewed coffee.

Also, I do not understand the need for potassium. What foods furnish it? One doctor who lets his maternity patients use fluid pills prescribes also that they eat a banana a day to provide potassium. You suggested orange juice. Sounds as if the fruits may all have some measure of this — true or false?

DEAR READER — No, acid neutralized coffee is not decaffeinated. If a coffee is decaffeinated it will say so specifically. I agree that it is often hard to tell the difference between some brands of decaffeinated coffee and regular coffee as far as taste is concerned. If you like it perked you can perk it the way you suggested.

Yes, all fruits contain potassium. You need potassium for normal function of your cells. The principal salt in your cells is a potassium salt while the principal salt in your blood and outside the cells is sodium salt. There are a variety of disorders that occur if one is low on potassium.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hope you can clear up this matter on nutrition.

My neighbor claims milk caused her teeth to abscess and decay, therefore she will not give her grandsons milk while they are with her (three weeks). I gave them milk at my house, and they couldn't get enough and that's when she told me it was wrong. Instead of milk she gives them water or juice. She says her doctor says skim milk is bad because of the high carbohydrate content — but to drink the cream diluted with water.

The boys aged 2 and 6 live in a town many miles from here and appear to be healthy, normal children without allergies. I don't know what they get at home. Please straighten me out on this matter.

DEAR READER — Your neighbor means well, but she has been given the wrong information. Milk does not cause abscessed teeth or dental decay. On the contrary, good experiments in dogs have shown that a calcium deficient diet leads to loose teeth because calcium is lost from the bone around the root of the tooth. Then gum disease (pyorrhea) with small abscesses and eventually loss of teeth develops. By returning the dogs to a good diet with lots of calcium the dental problem cleared up.

Milk is our main source of calcium, and certainly growing children with a growing skeleton need lots of calcium. There is no significant amount of calcium in fruit juice, and some hard water has a little but not nearly the amount needed. Cream is low in calcium compared to milk, since cream is supposed to be mostly fat separated from the rest of the milk. It will not replace milk in terms of either good protein or calcium. I hope these boys are getting plenty of milk at home.

What people say

"You say you're Jewish but essentially, your faith is put into education, culture, the League of Women Voters, mental health. It was the educated, enlightened, American way. A minority of the Jewish community now suddenly says to itself, "If American culture is becoming substantially amoral, I've got to distance myself slightly. Values come from religion, not culture."
—Rabbi Eugene B. Borowitz, editor of Sh'ma magazine on why Judaism may be evaporating in America.

"Among the many queer things about the American economy is this. A writer can get more money for bungling a speech at a bankrupt college than he can for a short story masterpiece."

Many of the hands from the 'Return of Sherlock Homes — Bridge Detective' are old timers of the type known as "Book" hands.

That doesn't stop them from being interesting. In today's hand Sherlock Holmes sits East and Scurry, his foil, is South. We hold no brief for Scurry's bidding except that it got him to a spot where unusual defense by Holmes was necessary for the defeat of the contract.

West started out with three rounds of clubs. Almost anyone would ruff that third club automotically. Then irrespective of what East returned, South would get to dummy twice with diamonds to finesse twice against East's king-10-nine. The defense would wind up with three tricks they had started with and no more.

Holmes didn't ruff. Instead he made the apparently insane play of discarding a diamond.

South was in. He led a diamond to dummy, finessed once in trumps, noted the 4-0 break, but could do no better than lead a second diamond. Holmes ruffed this, got out with a spade and waited happily for his second trump trick.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Sarasota wants us to discuss the "Short Club".

This bid, invented by Oswald Jacoby in 1933, was described than as your general utility man. It is not forcing, but may be bid with just three clubs to an honor with a balanced hand that is too weak for a one notrump opening. Partner is supposed to respond just as if opener had at least four clubs. We will discuss this in our next week's columns.

The feathers strain bones

Maybe you've heard about that bird called the horned grebe. Mostly, what it eats is feathers. In fact, 60 per cent of its diet is feathers. The rest of what it eats is fish. And the science boys finally have figured out that it eats all those feathers to strain out the fish bones.

LOVE AND WAR

Pregnancy is usually named as the most common reason why some couples choose to elope rather than to marry conventionally. But our Love and War man, who also has looked into that matter, says there's another reason. When a lad and his maid still have doubts, they're apt to jump to the wedding to get it over with. That notion of struggling with uncertainties during the days or weeks or months of waiting is too tough to face.

Return of 'True Grit'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Producer Hal Wallis, who has been in the movie business since Rin Tin Tin was a pup, approaches his new release with the zest of a youngster fresh out of film school.

"It'll open in 350 cities Oct. 17, with 50 more the following week," he says. "There'll be television spots on all the networks; Universal tells me it's spending more money on my picture than on 'Jaws.'"

Wallis is 76, having started in films in 1922. Yet he retains the same enthusiasm he had as a movie publicist (for Rin Tin Tin, among others), and he observes that his publicity career helped prepare him to know what the public wants.

His latest offering is Rooster Cogburn," with John Wayne in his Oscar-winning role and Katharine Hepburn as his unwilling accomplice. The combination is the kind of showmanship that Wallis is noted for — he was the first producer to see the appeal of Martin and Lewis and Elvis Presley.

The Wayne-Hepburn co-billing had its inception during the scripting of a sequel to Wallis' "True Grit."

"The story was shaping up with an important woman's part, and the idea came up of trying to get Hepburn," said the producer. "Everyone said 'She'd never do it,' but I wasn't so sure. I had a good relationship with Kate on 'The Rainmaker,' and she told me at the time, 'If you ever have a picture with John Wayne, I'd like to do it.'

ROLL THE CAMERAS! — Film producer Hal Wallis, active in Hollywood since 1922, works with Katharine Hepburn during the filming of his latest movie, "Rooster Cogburn." Miss Hepburn told Wallis if he ever had a part for her in a movie with John Wayne, she would take it. He does and she did. It is her second movie with Wallis.

"I sent her a treatment of the script and then met with her. Kate is very smart about scripts, and she said, 'I like it, but I feel I would only be a feeder.'" Which means that she would be a bystander while Cogburn had all the action.

Wallis went back to the drawing board and came up with a script that made the woman's role equally important. John Wayne's reaction to working with Hepburn: "I'd crawl on my hands and knees for the chance."

The actress had undergone a hip operation, and Wallis figured she would eschew any action scenes. When she apeared for wardrobe tests on the Universal backlot, he mentined that a double would do her riding. "I'm not used to having doubles," she replied, and she climbed on a horse to demonstrate her fitness.

"On the location in Oregon, she got on the horse, got off the horse and did all her own riding," said the admiring producer. "Not only that. We had a raft sequence in which the two stars were to ride down the Rogue River, which had swift, white water. She inisted on doing that, too."

He added: "Kate and Duke are very much alike in their strength and their forthrightness, even though they differ politically. Because of their difference, everyone on the set was waiting for an explosion. It never came. They worked together in perfect harmony, going off by themselves to rehearse their scenes."

So pleased was Wallis with the results that he has already prepared a sequel, "Some Time," based on the two characters' parting in "Cogburn" with the hope that they would meet again. The meeting will hopefully take place next spring, when Miss Hepburn finishes a stage play.

Wallis admitted that his filmmaking pace has slowed to one every year or 18 months, quite a difference from when he personally supervised seven a year at Warner Brothers. It's not because he wants to slow down. He finds material scarce ("All I get are spy stories"), as well as available stars.

"Besides," he added, "after all my years in the business, I only want to do pictures I really believe in and can enjoy."

He was asked to name his favorite pictures. "Casablanca" came first, then "Becket," "Gunfight at OK Corral," "Saratoga Trunk," "Little Caesar," "Anne of The Thousand Days," "True Grit," "The Rose Tatoo," "Come Back, Little Sheba." The latter two, he said proudly, won Oscar for Anna Magnani and Shirley Booth in their first Hollywood films.

Wallis' movies have produced more Oscar-winning performances than any other producer's. "But it's amazing what I had to do to get those actors. I hunted all over the country for Gary Cooper, who didn't want to do 'Sergeant York.' And Jimmy Cagney sent his brother to explain to me why Jimmy didn't want to do 'Yankee Doodle Dandy.'"

Reds are ready to run at Red Sox

CINCINNATI (AP) — The track will be fast and the skies clear for tonight's third World Series game, and Cincinnati's thoroughbreds intend to run the Boston Red Sox right out of Riverfront Stadium.

"Everything's different now," said Joe Morgan. "Playing at home is going to make all the difference in the world for us."

At no time in recent World Series history has the home field advantage or weather conditions meant as much as in this one.

The Red Sox, although they split the first two games in Boston over the weekend, had a distinct advantage in their own Fenway Park. Now, they have an obvious disadvantage at Riverfront.

"The ball park had a lot to do with our performance," said Morgan, pointing to a meager total of three runs and a .188 team batting average in the two games.

The Reds, accustomed to their springy artificial turf at home, were slowed to a crawl by Fenway's much slower natural grass, not to mention heavy rains that bothered their famed running game. Also, there was the psychological disadvantage of playing with "The Green Monster," the close left field wall that just about dares righthanded hitters to swing at it.

None of the hitters on the Red Sox or the Reds reached the notorious wall on the fly, but that doesn't mean it didn't play a big part in the first two games.

"Mentally, it was kind of hard for us," Morgan said, "because our right-handed hitters were going for that wall. And I think it hurt us because it was always on our minds. Now that we're at Riverfront Stadium, it's going to make a big difference the way our hitters attack the ball. You'll see different hitters here."

The Red Sox will also see different runners in Cincinnati, too, because of the sleek playing surface.

"We can score runs without getting hits," said Morgan, referring to Cincinnati's blinding speed. "The rain sure hurt us in Boston. When you play in the rain, everybody's game is changed. I wish it hadn't rained."

While the artificial turf was expected to help the Reds' offense, it could also be a crucial factor in the Boston defense.

A big year for the locals

It's been a most successful fall sports campaign so far for local high schools.

In the San Antonio League, both Damien and Upland have gained votes in the weekly CIF 3-A grid poll. In fact, the Spartans were ranked sixth and the Highlanders 13th in last week's balloting.

Walnut's football squad is also highly regarded in the CIF 2-A rankings, while Ontario Christian has gained favor in the 1-A poll. The area's only 4-A football team, Chaffey may also be on its way to recognition in the polls as the Tigers have racked up three straight wins after losing a 13-7 heartbreaker to Pasadena in their opener.

Since Pasadena upset 4-A number-two team Bishop Amat last Friday Chaffey's loss to them in the season opener was nothing to be ashamed of.

In cross country, Upland has been top-ranked in the 3-A voting while Walnut has been rated in the top ten in the 2-A division. In addition, local high schools have several fine runners who could challenge for the CIF individual championship.

However, one sport in which locals excel that's been overlooked so far this fall has been water polo.

Water polo teams

According to the latest CIF water polo poll, Claremont occupied the number six spot and fellow SAL entry Upland was seventh.

Veteran coach Gene McCarthy's Wolfpack swimmers have posted a 12-2 season record going into the opening of league play on Wednesday. The Pack water polo squad has been led by high scorers John Borland and Creg Hildebrand and the defensive work of goalie David McCutcheon.

And, speaking of scoring, how about the Chaffey High water polo team?

The Tiger poolsters set a CIF Southern Section scoring record recently in beating Fontana High 50-0. A few days later they proved that was no fluke by blasting Redlands 29-0. And in the El Segundo-Aviation Tourney Chaffey set a new mark for most goals in the tourney with 51 in winning all four of its games and the tournament title.

Several items of local interest were discussed in the October CIF Monthly Bulletin.

Notes from CIF

Many Southern Section leagues have been re-aligned for the 1976-77 sports season, with further releaguing expected.

However, its safe to say that there will be no major changes among the local leagues. The only local schools directly affected by the releaguing which has already taken place are Ontario Christian and American Christian.

Both OCHS and American will remain in the same leagues next year, but will be joined by new members. Added to the Olympic League was Glendora's Western Chrstian, giving that 1-A loop a total of eight members. New addition to the Christian League for 1976-77 will be Inland Christian of San Bernardino.

No changes are anticipated in the San Antonio or Hacienda leagues. The Citrus Belt League may see some additions and deletions as that loop is down to six schools right now and reportedly a couple of those members are disenchanted with the CBL lineup.

A probable change is also expected in the Arrowhead League. The A.L. is down to only seven members right now for football although the possibility exists that Orange Lutheran may rejoin the loop for football next fall. However, a couple of the other Arrowhead entries, notably Notre Dame and Aquinas, may be moving to stiffer competition if some of the other Arrowhead schools don't improve their athletic programs.

It was also reported that a request by Chino High officials which would have made Don Lugo Jr. High ninth-grade students able to compete in Cowboy athletics was denied by the CIF executive committee.

WFL may die of apathy this week

NEW YORK (AP) — They've paid their bills. As far as is known, they haven't lied to the public or falsified attendance figures.

But the World Football League, fighting a backlash from its horrid first year, is finding that honesty and promptness with the checkbook aren't enough.

And so the league, which last year set records for losing money and missing payrolls, may give in to the apathy it has generated in its cities and fold before the week is out.

Faced with a continuing flow of red ink, the men who run the WFL are meeting in one of this city's corporate skyscrapers. They have three alternatives— fold weaker teams and continue, prop up weaker teams and continue or shut down—and they are expected to select one of them in the next day or two.

Representatives of each of the league's 10 teams met throughout the day and into the night here Monday. They were back at it today, trying to avoid what WFL President Chris Hemmeter called the "ultimate negative."

"We are exploring all directions to save the league," Hemmeter said during a break in the meetings Monday. "We just don't want the league to go down the tubes."

The lords of the WFL thought the financing formula conceived by Hemmeter to pay most players one per cent of each team's gate receipts would provide the basis for growth and allow the league to suffer through bleak times while it rebuilt credibility.

What they didn't believe could happen did—fans have stayed away in droves. No team is averaging as much as 20,000, not even Memphis with its celebrated trio of former Miami Dolphins. The league average is 13,323, and falling weekly.

Hemmeter said the key to the decision to be made here is not what will happen to the WFL in the rest of 1975, but what the future is in 1976—"If there isn't a '76, our interest in '75 will terminate."

Then, he said, "the decision would be made to shut down the league now, come clean and move into other areas independently, whatever they might be."

If the WFL goes on, it must decide whether to continue assessments such as last week's bill of $300,000 which nine teams had to pay in order to keep the Portland franchise alive. It must also decide what to do with Philadelphia, where a visiting team's 40 per cent share of a gate with an average attendance of 3,705 will barely pay the hotel bill.

The various hopes league officials have had for building a second football league have mostly crumbled this year. And the attitude was glum in the Time & Life Building where the meetings were held.

What the league officials were surveying were a series of discouraging developments that have tumbled on them since they announced a $4 million offer to Joe Namath, which the quarterback soon turned down.

There have been these developments since:

—The Chicago franchise—the one the league said would be its flagship—was folded following failure to raise enough money and after a pair of 3,000-plus crowds.

—Some of the league's so-called package of superstars failed to deliver. Calvin Hill went out early in the season with a knee injury and the man Hawaii signed to replace him, Duane Thomas, was cut last week. Daryle Lamonica quit the Southern California Sun after playing behind a rookie. John Gilliam went back to the National Football League after Chicago was disbanded.

—And the trio of Csonka, Klick and Warfield, the ones responsible for the initial good publicity the league got, have failed to excite the sports consumer. They drew less than 5,000 in Philadelphia.

—Two teams, Jacksonville and Shreveport, have renegotiated salaries downward and Portland has been propped up by league help.

All the while, the people have stayed at home, the league has failed to win a television contract and player salaries under the Hemmeter share-the-wealth plan have remained lower than anyone expected.

In Jacksonville, team officials estimate the franchise will lose $700,000 under a financing plan designed to allow a club to break even with an average attendance of 17,000. "The only problem we have is we are short on attendance," a team spokesman said.

Since attendance is the league's only real source of revenue, that problem could be a fatal one.

Sails claim Wilt owes two seasons

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain "owes us two more years — in fact, he probably owes us three," says the owner of San Diego's American Basketball Association team.

The claim will be pressed if Chamberlain decides to play again, Frank Goldberg said. Chamberlain, who coached the San Diego Conquistadors last season, has expressed interest in playing again for the Los Angeles Lakers.

Goldberg, whose team now is called the Sails, said Monday that he has served notice on all interested parties.

"If Wilt decides to play again, he owes us two more years," Goldberg said.

"In fact, he probably owes us three years because of the option clause in his contract. We have a strong legal position. I've sent wires to Wilt's attorney, the Lakers, the Knicks, the commissioner of the National Basketball Association and our commissioner."

Goldberg said, "We contend that our rights in Chamberlain supersede the rights of the Lakers."

The contract also stipulates that Chamberlain would receive a six-figure salary and can't be traded except to a team on the West Coast, Goldberg said. Since San Diego is the only ABA franchise in the Far West, the owner said Chamberlain can't be traded out of the ABA without asking waivers for him.

The big center left Los Angeles in 1974 to become player-coach in San Diego but a judge refused to let him play the first year, and he left after then.

The Lakers have expressed interest in using Chamberlain in a trade with a team that needs a center like the New York Knicks. The Lakers acquired two other centers, Kareem Abdul Jabbar and Walt Wesley, in a trade with Milwaukee.

Goldberg was interviewed by Jack Murphy, sports editor of the San Diego Union.

And the comments brought this from Bill Musselman, coach of the Sails: "If Chamberlain reports, he can run up and down the baseline along with the rest of 'em."

New Bruin era begins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gene Bartow doesn't worry about trying to follow John Wooden as coach of UCLA's basketball dynasty. He doesn't think Wooden could do it himself.

"It's a challenge like no other coach has probably ever had, like following Casey Stengel with the Yankees, for example," the soft-spoken Bartow said in an interview.

"There's no doubt there are going to be difficulties in some areas following John but I don't think it's necessarily the man that's the problem, it's the dynasty he built."

The Wooden coaching era more or less comes to an official close Wednesday when the Bruins open practice for the 1975-76 season under Bartow to defend the 10th national title they won in 12 years—the crown that Wooden carried into retirement.

Bartow, who left Illinois after one season to come to UCLA, said that every job "has its great pluses and maybe a minus or so.

"If there's a minus here it's the fact that they've won so much and it's unrealistic that it can ever happen again 10 times in a 12-year period. This is a factor that will be difficult to cope with."

Under Wooden winning became more than expected at UCLA.

There were 38 victories in a row in NCAA tournament play, an 88-game winning streak, 50 consecutive Pacific-8 Conference victories.

"It's unrealistic to think something like that can continue to happen, it's unrealistic to think you'll be in the final four in the NCAA playoffs twice in 10 years let alone what UCLA has done," said Bartow.

"They have just done so much that in my opinion if John Wooden, Adolph Rupp or Red Auerbach were starting over again and doing it here they couldn't win 10 national championships in 12 years."

But Bartow quickly, and emphatically, brushes away thoughts that things will be changing for the worse at UCLA.

"We've got an awful lot of things going for us: a lot of good players, a beautiful place to play in Pauley Pavilion, great support. I think the odds perhaps are with us in many things. They're a lot higher for us than a lot of colleges."

As Bartow put it, "I think we're going to stay awfully good."

Returning from Wooden's last team are starters Marques Johnson and Richard Washington at forwards, Andre McCarter at guard and center Ralph Drollinger. Gone are Dave Meyers and Pete Trgovich.

And soon after Bartow took over, UCLA completed a round of signing some of the area's most coveted high school players, quickly ending thoughts that Wooden's retirement might stifle the flow of talent to the Bruins.

Big changes coming in SCIAC

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Talk of a possible football merger between Pomona-Pitzer and Claremont-Mudd surfaced at Monday's weekly football luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant.

There is definitely a move afoot to consolidate the two football programs but nothing has been decided. There are also talks about the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference adopting a complete double round-robin schedule in future seasons.

"Something is going to happen," Claremont-Mudd Coach John Zinda said, "but everything is in the talking stages. There is no question we're at a crossroads about the future. A lot of things are being considered."

The heart of the problem is the inability of the Stags and Sagehens to compete on an equal basis with the other SCIAC schools (La Verne, Occidental, Redlands, Whittier). Another major problem is the lack of schools with similar programs to play.

Pomona-Pitzer Coach Walt Ambord, who again faces the usual problem of seeing his Sagehens outmanned every week as evidenced by the current 0-3 record, says he is proposing a merger.

"We have to do something," Ambord said. "We're down to 36 players now and a lot of them aren't football players."

Azusa Pacific's Jerry Sconce was an interested observer.

His APC team enjoys a perfect 4-0 record enjoyed at the expense of SCIAC teams. Obviously, a complete double round-robin schedule by the SCIAC would wreck Azusa's schedule.

"If the conference is going to adopt a double round-robin schedule in football, it will have to do it in all sports," Sconce said. "In my personal opinion, I think Claremont-Mudd and Pomona-Pitzer should continue. If they did, they would be awesome. If that happened, we would like to become the sixth member of the conference."

Obviously, any consolidation would create some other problems. What name would the teams use and how would the coaching be worked out?

"I would be glad to be the trainer," Ambord laughed.

La Verne College's Roland Ortmayer was concerned about the students' participation if a merger took place. But Zinda answered that a combined setup would field a junior varsity squad as well as a varsity team.

Again, Azusa Pacific and Citrus earned the Player of Week awards from Foothill Beverage Company.

APC's Mitch Merrill won the college award for the second time for his 202 yards and two touchdowns in the wild 35-28 win over La Verne. Citrus defensive end Gene Esslin received the JC honor for his 12 tackles and two sacks in the 33-3 win over Riverside.

Quoting the coaches:

ORTMAYER: "Our defense showed enthusiasm against Azusa but it fell apart on us at the end of the game. This week, we host Cal Lutheran. It should be our turn to win but Cal Lutheran won't agree to that. We generally have good, tough contests and it's all football from whistle to whistle. Our offense is better this year because of more experience but our defense hasn't been as good."

AMBORD: "We got beat 56-6 the second straight week. Maybe people will think it's a misprint. We are losing the games ourselves more than being beaten. I can't see any victories the way we're playing but we keep improving. Maybe we can make it close. We have some good players and I feel sorry for those who want to play the game. It's getting tougher and tougher each year. Maybe the solution is to go to church twice on Sunday. It seems like everything is going against us. Tim Short had an excellent game in rushing for 106 yards on 16 carries and a lot of that was without blocking."

SCONCE: "Both La Verne and us had our moments. Fortunately for us, ours came at the end of the game. I can't remember an APC team coming back like that. We play Redlands this week. Redlands doesn't do anything fancy but it is a precision-type team which does everything well and makes few mistakes."

FINGERTIP CONTROL — Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals grasps the ball with his fingernails as he breaks into the open in Monday night's NFL game with the Redskins. Although Metcalf accounted for over 200 yards, Cardinals lost.

'Skins defeat Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was like winning one for old Notre Dame.

Joe Theismann and John Pergine came in for a lot of ribbing from their Washington teammates Monday night after they connected on a fake field goal to spark the Redskins to a 27-17 National football League victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a nationally televised game.

Washington reserve linebacker Rusty Tillman told newsmen as they crowded around Pergine, who caught the 300-yard touchdown pass from Theismann, that he was the primary receiver on the play.

"It was a Notre Dame special," said Tillman. "I was a receiver on the play and he didn't even see me."

Theismann, who was a freshman when Pergine, now a reserve linebacker, was playing for the Fighting Irish, said, "We have a very strong Catholic relationship, even though we're not even Catholic."

The surprise play by the Redskins came early in the third quarter after Terry Metcalf had stunned Washington with a 93-yard return of the second-half kickoff.

"We really caught them with their pants down," said Theismann, third string quarterback and holder on placements. "It was an element-of-surprise play and it worked beautifully. It's an amazing picture when you see your guys down field and nobody around them."

The fake field goal and the running of rookie Mike Thomas, who scored touchdowns from the one and the two-yard lines, moved the Redskins, now 3-1, to within one game of the undefeated Dallas Cowboys in the National Football Conference Eastern Division. The Cardinals are now 2-2.

Cardinals coach Don Coryell said, "What did I think about the fake punt? I didn't like it. What else can you say.

"There was absolutely no doubt in my mind that we would not come back and get 'em," he said. "They were obviously up for the game."

Washington's Mark Moseley and St. Louis' Jim Bakken traded 47-yard field goals before Thomas, from the University of Nevada-Los Vegas, went over from the two for his first touchdown to give the Redskins a 10-3 lead. Metcalf's kickoff return tied the score.

After the Pergine score, Jim Hart put the Cardinals back into a tie with a 48-yard touchdown strike to Mel Gray to tie the knot at 17-17.

In the fourth quarter, however, Thomas dove one yard for his second touchdown of the night and Moseley booted a 34-yard field goal to put the icing on the victory.

And, when the Cardinals appeared to be closing in, linebacker Chris Hanburger picked off a Hart pass to kill a possible score in the fourth quarter.

"The interception by Hanburger was a fine defensive play," said Coryell. "We just went to the well once too often on that one and Hanburger is an intelligent, good defensive player and he read it well."

Coach George Allen was elated with the play of the defense and the special teams.

"Our defense took the ball away five times," he said. "In our last two with the Cards, we didn't take it away at all."

Pat backer breaks leg

BOSTON (AP) — Rookie linebacker Rod Shoate of the National Football League's New England Patriots will be out for the rest of the season with a broken right leg, a team spokesman said Monday.

Shoate, second round draft choice from the University of Oklahoma, broke his leg Sunday.

Leo player dies

Marty Mercurio, who quarterbacked La Verne College's football team in 1972 and 1973, died Sunday afternoon from cancer.

The 23-year-old Mercurio had been student teaching at Glendora High since leaving La Verne. He became ill a year ago.

Prior to attending La Verne, Mercurio played football at Glendora High and Citrus College.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Grace Episcopal Church in Glendora. Oakdale Mortuary in Glendora is handling the arrangements.

Mercurio is survived by his parents, Blas and Marjorie Mercurio, and two brothers, Ronald and Vincent. His father, Blas, formerly coached football at Citrus College.

Yanks struggling in early competition

MEXICO CITY (AP) — It may be too early to tell, but the United States' grand plan for domination of the Pan American Games may be going a bit awry.

It's certain, though, that whatever the Americans do accomplish, it won't be too popular.

Heading into today's full schedule, in which 15 gold medals were at stake, the United States had collected four golds, four silvers and two bronzes. The impetuous Cubans took five golds, three silvers and a bronze. The host Mexicans had two golds, a silver and three bronzes, followed by Canada at 0-1-3.

Today's finals included six in track and field, where the Americans have had the most trouble, and five in shooting— the saving grace of the U.S. effort so far.

To a chorus of catcalls and whistling, the Americans landed face first in most of Monday's track and field events. The best any U.S. competitor could do there was a silver medal for Arnie Robinson of San Diego in the long jump. Al Lanier of Cincinnati won a bronze in the same event for only the second of a possible nine medals Monday in track and field.

The Cubans—with some help from the host Mexicans—derided the U.S. competitors until the increasingly sensitive Americans could stand it no longer. They retaliated with some vociferous Bronx cheers that seemed to quiet down their detractors.

But in other events later in the day, the anti-U.S. feeling was manifest again.

When the Cubans finally won in three consecutive games, the victors broke into a gleeful demonstration on the playing floor. Allen Coage, a bodyguard for singer Aretha Franklin, was one of two U.S. individual gold medal winners. Coage of East Orange, N.J., triumphed in the heavyweight judo finals.

Herschel Anderson of Columbus, Ga., broke his own Pan Am record in winning the freehand pistol shooting competition with a score of 559 points of a possible 600. Americans also won the team air rifle and team free-hand pistol events.

Under normal circumstances, a 41-point victory margin of 103-62 over Argentina would be a satisfying enough victory for the U.S. basketball team. But Coach Marv Harshamn was morose. "If we play against the Cubans like we did against the Argentinians today, we'll probably lose."

He characterized the Argentine team as one that should have been beaten by far more than 41 points "to prove ourselves."

A crucial proving ground was ahead of the U.S. today, against the potent Mexican cagers, who devoured Venezuela 110-45 Monday.

One of the most stunning failures by the U.S. runners was in the 10,000-meter run, where Mexicans Luis Hernandez and Rodolfo Gomez trotted across the finish line almost in tandem.

Coloradoans Garry Bjorklund and John Gregorio, both of whom had cracked the Games' mark of 28:50.8, were embarrassingly off Hernandez' winning time of 29:19.38.

Carmen Romero of Cuba broke her own Games' record in winning the women's discus with a throw of 197 feet 4 inches.

Olegario Vasquez Rana of Mexico erased his own world mark in winning the air rifle individual title with 393 of 400.

In flyweight weightlifting, Francisco Casamayor of Cuba won all three gold medals in the classification.

Players say owners could destroy NFL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association told Congress today that elimination of the controversial reserve system, especially the Rozelle Rule, will not destroy professional sports but that the owners could do it with irresponsible bidding for players.

Kermit Alexander, association president who played 11 years before being cut last year, said NFL owners argue falsely when they say all the outstanding players would be purchased by the richest clubs if the Rozelle Rule is outlawed.

"If the current NFL owners can not successfully operate the league as sound businessmen, then maybe it's time for new owners," said Alexander. "If they can not control themselves and will destroy the NFL through outrageous bidding for players, then we will simply have to start over.

"Professional football will always survive because there is a great demand for it. Some of the owners may not. So be it. I am tired of hearing that people I represent must give up their freedom because Lamar Hunt and Clint Murchison are so crazy that they—not the players—will destroy football," he said.

Alexander, who appeared with Ed Garvey, association executive director, made his remarks in testimony prepared for the House judiciary subcommittee on monopolies and commercial law which is holding a hearing on legislation aimed at eliminating professional sports' reserve system.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle also was to testify before the House antitrust committee

Rozelle, speaking Monday night before the start of the St. Louis Cardinals-Washington Redskins game, said professional sports needs some form of option compensation rule to continue the competitive balance between teams.

"I think over a period of time there can be some amendments made but I do feel that to have equality of competition and healthy entertainment, you need some form of compensation rule," he said.

The players union has argued that the Rozelle Rule restricts their freedom to seek employment with another club when their contract with one team is complete; the owners have argued that the rule is necessary to maintain the competitive balance of the league.

In his prepared testimony, Garvey said adoption of the proposed legislation "will at least give the player an opportunity, at one point in his career, to negotiate a contract openly and honestly with other employers. It will not destroy the league.

"It will allow players to have freedom of choice and will take from the club owners that incredible power that they now exercise over the rights of their employes. If it raises salaries, so be it.

"The Congress of the United States can not continue to allow the employers in professional sports to continue depriving people of their liberty based on hollow arguments of 'competitive balance' without any proof that any of the restrictive measures has anything to do with the success or failure of franchises in the National Football League," said Garvey.

Coaches voice thoughts

ZINDA: "We've been progressing each week. Our new offense is starting to pay dividends. The big thing is we aren't making many mistakes. That may be because we are coaching less and giving the players more responsibility. We basically practice fundamentals and five basic plays. We're looking forward to the layoff. We will use 17 players in a JV game against Caltech Friday. It should be a lot of fun. Mike McGehee and the offensive line played well in the 29-7 win over USIU. Keith Cunningham's field goal kicking gives us a lot of punch."

MAL EATON, MSAC: "We've improved each week. We're a young football team and it takes game experience. Our players and staff hung in there when the going was tough and it's starting to pay off. Our defense has improved and when the defense scores, it's a sign you're developing into a team. We host Cerritos Saturday night. Cerritos is the best balanced team we've played this season and has the best skilled people. We have some momentum now but we must improve if we're going to win this week."

JOHN STRYCULA, Citrus: "We're very happy to win the first conference game. We're especially pleased with our defensive play. In the last four games, we have allowed only 137 yards on the ground. All of our running backs did a good job but we're not blocking that well. We have to get more consistent on offense. This week, we go to Palomar and you always have have to be on your toes when you play them. It's always a dogfight."

WILLIE RICHARDSON, Chaffey: "The whole difference in our loss to Saddleback was the offensive plays. We had only 58 offensive plays complared to 117 for them. We also had seven turnovers. We lost tight end Mike Toomay with a broken bone in his leg and his loss has hurt the offense. Jeff Talerico played an outstanding game on defense. We play Riverside this week. I think we'll bounce back to play a good game."

Superdome still having its problems

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pigeon droppings on the seats, alas.

When the droppings decorate prime $15 courtside seats at New Orleans Jazz National Basketball Association games, it upsets Jazz Vice President Barry Mendelson.

When the $7.50 seats also are contaminated by spilled syrup, left over from a game four days earlier, and season ticket holders can't find seats because the seats are not properly marked, Mendelson's voice begins to rise.

He was telling Monday's Superdome Commission meeting about it when Mayor Moon Landrieu, commission chairman, interrupted to plead for "a little more tolerance."

"You have to pay some price in order to have some sort of minority involvement, and we are paying that price," said Landrieu.

"That doesn't mean that there must be interminable patience, but there does have to be a break-in period," he added.

However, Landrieu made it plain that, after two months of operations, "the training program is over" and it is time for the operating staff to attain efficiency and cut costs.

No names were mentioned but Mendelson's criticism applied to Superdome Services Inc. (SSI), a black company given a negotiated cost-plus contract covering cleanup and other service work in the $163 million stadium.

Lyle first opponent for new Foreman

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's not easy for an immature man to get so much so soon." — George Foreman.

A year ago, Foreman was the heavyweight champion of the world, considered by many to be invincible. In the last 12 months he's been almost invisible.

No more. The former champ says his head's on straight and he has a goal—to regain the title in 1976.

"Boxing again is very serious to me," Foreman said Monday at a news conference to announce that he has signed to fight Ron Lyle in November or December at an undetermined site.

Foreman is in the position of having to prove himself all over again. That is because of his upset eighth-round knockout loss to Muhammad Ali that cost him the championship last Oct. 30 in Zaire and his exhibition against five opponents on the same day that turned into a fiasco last April 28 in Toronto.

Foreman appears to be aware of his lost prestige and is willing to accept reponsiblity for it. Whereas he publicly offered excuses for his loss to Ali in the months following the fight, Foreman said in an interview Monday:

"I had the same opportunity as the other fighter. I have to put all the mistakes on myself. I got away from the basics. It was my fault.

"No doubt about it—I was overconfident."

Some critics feel that Foreman not only is no longer overconfident, he no longer has confidence and that is why his only public appearance in the ring since Zaire has been the Toronto exhibition.

"Not at all," Foreman said. "There were a couple of instances (proposed fights) when it looked like something was gonna happen, but didn't. All of sudden, time just went by."

He said depression over losing hasn't kept him from fighting, but that there is no doubt he had felt the loss. "There was no dejection, but as an athlete looking back at the mistakes I made, it tears me apart."

One of the fights Foreman turned down was a bout against Oscar Bonavena. That fight would have been part of a closed-circuit television doubleheader with Ali's title defense against Chuck Wepner last March 28.

"I didn't like the quality of the fighter (Ali-Wepner) and didn't want any part of it," he said. A venture which he now wishes he had not been a part of was the exhibition in Toronto.

"I think Toronto didn't do me any good," said Foreman of the nationally-televised exhibition which turned out to be high camp—marked by disputes with the referee, fights between various cornermen and Ali's mugging at ringside. One opponent, Charlie Polite, even kissed Foreman.

"If I was gonna do it again I'd have to think three times," Foreman said, his mouth creased in a smile, but his eyes serious. "I'm a serious man. I'm not comfortable doing something like that. That's enough talk about that."

Turf may hurt Red Sox

"You need a quicker infielder and outfielder on this surface," Morgan said. "You have to have that extra step to cut off baseballs. The Red Sox better be quick on this surface or it'll hurt them."

The American League champions, despite Morgan's warning, feel they'll be ready, willing and able to play in the home park of the National League kings.

"Maybe the Reds don't realize it, but we're a great Astroturf team," said Bill Lee, Boston's fine lefthander. "We play darn good baseball on artificial turf, just ask the Kansas City Royals."

Whitey Herzog, manager of the Royals, agrees with that lofty assessment.

"The Red Sox can play on any surface," he said. "They're just a good ball club. The artificial turf at our ballpark in Kansas City didn't bother them much, if at all, this year. They won four out of six in our park."

Obviously thinking about that fast artificial turf, Boston Manager Darrell Johnson named Rick Wise as his starter to oppose Cincinnati's Gary Nolan.

"Rick is basically a highball pitcher and that should be helpful," Johnson said. "A sinkerball pitcher forces men to hit the ball on the ground. A highball pitcher, like Wise, gets many men on pops."

Rico Petrocelli, Boston's third baseman, had the artificial surface on his mind, too.

"I won't be able to play back on their right-handed hitters," Petrocelli said, grimacing. "They run too good."

The Red Sox, hoping to get the feel of the strange ballpark, worked out Monday night under the lights for Game No. 3. The weather for the third game was expected to be warm and clear.

"We're back where we started, all even," Johnson said. "It's a best-of-five series now. We just have to win three."

The fourth and fifth games of this 72nd World Series will also be played in Cincinnati on Wednesday and Thursday nights. If needed, the sixth and seventh games will take place back in Boston next Saturday and Sunday.

"We were a little anxious in Fenway Park," said Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's great catcher. "Everyone wanted to be the key too quickly. Maybe we'll be more relaxed here."

Morgan thinks so, obviously.

"We have more ways to beat you than any other team," said the brilliant second baseman. "Cut off our power and we can beat you with our running. Cut off our running and we can beat you with pitching and defense. You can shut off one area, but no one can shut off all the areas."

Sports briefs

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Walton, center for the Portland Trail Blazers, apparently received no more than bumps and bruises in an automobile accident Sunday night. X rays showed no broken bones in the lower left leg or right knee.

The Trail Blazers play a National Basketball Association exhibition game in Corvallis tonight against the Boston Celtics. A representative of the Trail Blazers said he knew of no reason why Walton would not be able to play.

The vehicle in which Walton was riding was involved in a collision with another vehicle at an intersection.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The University of Missouri has agreed informally to a four-game football series with San Diego State, the Aztecs' athletic director said Monday.

The Tigers are consistently a gridiron power in the Big Eight Conference while San Diego State is going independent after dominating the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference.

The games would be played in Columbia, Mo., in 1979 and 1982 and in San Diego Stadium in 1980 and 1981. Firm dates have yet to be set.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Jose State's Gary Maddocks, who caught seven passes and ran back punts for 102 yards Saturday in his team's 30-7 victory over Long Beach State, Monday was named the Pacific Coast Athletic Association Offensive Player of the Week.

The PCAA Defensive Player of the Week award went to Fresno State's Calvin Lane, who intercepted two passes and also recovered a fumble in Fresno's 29-0 loss to San Diego State Saturday.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The defensive line of the injury-riddled Kansas City Chiefs suffered another blow Monday with the announcement that left tackle Marvin Upshaw will be lost for four to six weeks.

The Chiefs also announced that guard Randy Beisler underwent successful neck surgery Monday. Beisler is out for the season, suffering torn ligaments and a dislocated neck.

Parent will have neck surgery

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bernie Parent, star goalie of the Philadelphia Flyers, was to undergo surgery on his neck today and will miss three or four more weeks of the National Hockey League season.

Dr. John Wolf, the team's orthopedic specialist, said Monday night the operation by two neurosurgeons will be to remove two discs in the neck pressing on two different roots.

Parent, the NHL's top goalie the past two seasons, has remained in traction at suburban Abington Hospital since he was injured in practice Oct. 3. Initially, physicians thought he had a pinched nerve.

Wolf said a milogram, where X rays are taken after a dye is injected into the body, revealed the problem Monday.

The physician described the operation as "pretty clear cut."

Wolf said Parent, who has been in "fairly significant pain" when he was out of traction, was "very happy" over the prospect his pain would go away.

With Parent sidelined, backup Wayne Stephenson will remain in the nets for the defending Stanley Cup champions, who have won their first three regular-season games this year.

The friendly little hamster is a favorite pet with boys and girls.

This little cousin of the rat and mouse gets its name from the German word "hamstern," which means "hoarder" in English.

You will know why when you see a hamster stuff its large cheek pouches with food and hurry off to add it to an ever-growing food supply in its nest, just as it does in the wild.

Hamsters, as those who have kept them as pets know, are lively and curious little animals. They like to scamper and climb over all available objects at night looking for food.

A fully-grown golden hamster, the one most often kept as a pet, may weigh only four or five ounces.

Its soft, golden-fur-covered body is about six inches long and ends in a tiny stump of a tail. In the wild, hamsters dig deep and complex burrows.

Here, in grass-lined rooms, they store food and raise their young, protected from their enemies.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Computer aimed at stock sales

LOS ANGELES — (BW) — A computer that has been aiding professional money managers in buying stocks has been "taught" to pay more attention to the timing in selling securities.

"On a weekly basis, the computer focuses in on situations where significant buy signals have disappeared, or are eroding," said William O'Neil, chairman of William O'Neil & Co., members of the New York, American and Pacific Stock Exchanges.

O'Neil has stored more than 250 million factors about 7,000 stocks in a computer. The information is current on a weekly basis and transformed into graphic presentation each weekend.

Instead of presenting the total range of stocks, the new product — data monitor — follows an individual's portfolio, O'Neil explained.

Unlike datagraphs, the all encompassing O'Neil product, the new book, Data Monitor, keeps track of an individual's portfolio. And, it puts heavy emphasis on violating predetermined sell rules, O'Neil said.

"The first page of each Data Monitor lists 10 factors that might cause a stock to drop in price," he said.

These include:

—Two quarterly earnings that have decelerated more than 59 per cent;

—Price instability in other stocks in the same industry group;

—Loss of upside price momentum;

—A decrease in the relative strength, as compared to the Standard & Poor's 500 Average.

"The product is designed to flag sell candidates and to keep track of when they violated the sell rules. This should help fund managers and pension funds to make decisions earlier," O'Neil said.

Generally, institutions spend almost all of their research money and commissions in exploring buying opportunities. Yet, portfolios can be hurt most when a profitable stock is held through a deep plunge, he added.

In addition to the sell rule violations, the Data Monitor provides comparison data on the buy side, too.

For example, the stocks in a portfolio are compared to the Standard & Poor's 500 in such factors as:

—Average percentage increase in current earnings estimates;

—Average price earnings ratio;

—Per cent of stocks with negative annual growth rates;

—Average profit margin after tax;

—Average relative strength of stocks.

Totally, M22 factors are compared. In addition, the Data Monitor portfolios are ranked by relative strength, now, three months ago and six months ago.

Finally, the portfolio is shown in the traditional datagraphs form, with five years' accumulation of 75 key stock factors, most in graphic form.

Subscribers to datagraphs pay $7,500 a year in additional commission dollars for the weekly Data Monitor. Non-subscribers pay an annual fee of $17,500, O'Neil said.

Since the product was introduced a month ago, some 28 clients have subscribed.

Helping hand to Hirohito wins praise

TOKYO (AP)—After watching Americans lend Emperor Hirohito a helping hand, a Japanese correspondent wrote Monday, "the Japanese attitude of being concerned about his gait but just looking on seems very cruel."

Hidetoshi Nishimura of the newspaper Asahi Shimbun reported from Honolulu that the Americans' behavior toward the 74-year-old emperor "is poles apart from the respectful distance the Japanese keep from their majesties."

He mentioned how farmer John Baltz gave the emperor a helping hand as he climbed down from inspecting a combine on a visit to the Baltz farm near Chicago.

"The aged emperor also was given a helping hand at Arlington National Cemetery and the oceanographic institution in Woods Hole after showing himself to be unsteady on his feet," Nishimura wrote.

Nishimura said "it seems that bodily contact does not constitute a discourtesy for the Americans" and that "the emperor looked a happy old man as he was tenderly assisted or had his shoulder held by the Americans."

NOTICE INVITING BIDS
CASH CONTRACT NO. 75-4
MARCHANT PARK GRADING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council of the City of San Dimas, County of Los Angeles, State of California, hereby invites sealed proposals or bids for the grading of Marchant Park, Cash Contract No. 75-4, all in accordance with the plans and specifications on file in the Office of the City Engineer of the City of San Dimas.

Sealed proposals or bids shall be delivered to the City Clerk of the City of San Dimas on or before 10:00 A.M. on the 24th day of October, 1975, at the Office of the City Clerk, City Hall, 245 East Bonita Avenue, San Dimas, California. The City Clerk will at said time, in open session publicly open, examine and declare said bids.

All proposals shall be accompanied by a check payable to the City of San Dimas, and certified by a responsible bank for an amount which shall not be less than ten (10%) percent of the aggregate of the proposal or by a bond for said amount and so payable, signed by the bidder and two sureties who shall justify before any officer competent to administer an oath, in double the said amount and over and above all statutory exemptions, or by a corporate Surety Bond to the satisfaction and approval of the City Council of the City of San Dimas, California.

The bid check, bond or Surety Bond of the successful bidder will be forfeited to said City in the event such successful bidder fails or refuses to enter into the required contract within five (5) days after the written notice that said contract has been awarded to him for work.

The successful bidder, simultaneously with the execution of the Contract Agreement, will be required to furnish a labor and materials bond in an amount equal to fifty per cent (50%) of the contract price and a faithful performance bond equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price.

BIDDERS ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that, pursuant to the Labor Code of the State of California, the City Council has ascertained and determined the general prevailing rate of per diem wages and the general prevailing rate for legal holiday and overtime work in the locality in which said work is to be performed for each craft or type of workmen needed to execute the contract for said work, which contract will be awarded to the successful bidder.

The City of San Dimas hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, sex or national origin in consideration for an award.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained at the Office of the City Engineer, City Hall, 245 East Bonita Avenue, San Dimas, California, upon request.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids received and to compare the relative merits of the respective bids and to choose that which in the opinion of said City Council will best serve the interests or needs of said city and to take all bids received under advisement for a period of not to exceed sixty (60) days, after the declaration thereof.

Each bidder in bidding shall state his California Contractor's License Number, as no bid will be accepted from a contractor who has not been licensed in accordance with the provisions of the laws of the State of California relating to licensing of Contractors.

This notice is hereby given and published by order of the City Council of the City of San Dimas, California and is dated this 8th day of October, 1975.

PUBLICATION OF PETITION AND NOTICE OF INTENTION TO APPLY ON NAMED DAY FOR ORDER DECLARING STATUS OF NEWSPAPER AS ONE OF GENERAL CIRCULATION
No. EAC-28645

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES

In the matter of the petition of MARTIN WEINBERGER to have the standing of the CLAREMONT COURIER as a newspaper of general circulation ascertained and established.

Petitioner MARTIN WEINBERGER alleges:

I. Petitioner is the editor and publisher of the newspaper known as the CLAREMONT COURIER.

II. Said newspaper is a newspaper of general circulation published for the dissemination of local or telegraphic news and intelligence of a general character in Claremont, Los Angeles County, California. The business address of this paper is 112 Harvard Avenue, Claremont, California.

III. Said newspaper has a bona fide subscription list of paying subscribers, numbering 3,500 in Claremont, California, and, elsewhere outside the city, and has an average bi-weekly circulation of 4,250.

IV. Said newspaper has been established and published at regular intervals of not less than weekly in the city and judicial district for which it is seeking adjudication for at least three years preceding the date of adjudication.

V. Said newspaper has a substantial distribution to paid subscribers in the city and judicial district in which it is seeking adjudication. It has maintained a minimum coverage of local or telegraphic news and intelligence of a general character of not less than twenty-five percent of its total inches during each year of the three year period. It has only one principal office of publication and that office is in the city and judicial district for which it is seeking adjudication.

VI. Said newspaper sought and obtained an adjudication that it was a newspaper of general circulation prior hereto, on May 1, 1936, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for a judgment ascertaining and establishing said CLAREMONT COURIER as a newspaper of general circulation as defined in Sections 6000 and 6008 of the Government Code, for the City of Claremont, for the County of Los Angeles, and for the State of California.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on October 30, 1975, at 9:00 A.M. or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in Dept. A of the Superior Court, County of Los Angeles, East District, located at 400 Civic Center Plaza, Pomona, California, petitioner intends to apply for an order declaring said newspaper to be a newspaper of general circulation.

AQUA MASSAGE SHOWER HEAD

OUR REG. 15.97 11.88

. . . is not like any other showerhead! It's two showerheads in one. With its head rotated to the "Massage" position, AQUA-MASSAGE produces 380 pulsating jets of water each minute that strike the body like the nimble fingers of a professional masseur. These soothe aching muscles and help tension melt away. When rotated to the "Spray" position, AQUA-MASSAGE produces three concentric rings of water that form a full coverage, bodyhugging pattern unlike any other shower. There's nothing else like it on the market!
